It Might Have Been
These may indeed be the saddest of words, but how many opportunities have been missed by the lack of a little forethought. Good employees miss suitable jobs, congenial souls fail to meet, the right goods are sold to the wrong people, and the right people buy the wrong things.
Much misapplied effort could be avoided by a timely advertisement on our classified page. There are thirty-three different classifications.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hungjao Conditions:
Those Cancelled Passes

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I was very interested to read the letter on Hungjao signed by PENALIZED, because, having just acquired a curfew pass after interminable applications, I was told, the first time I tried to use it, that it was "cancelled."

PENALISED emphasises two important points: firstly, Japanese soldiers are free to rob the servants of foreign residents, and, indirectly, the residents themselves; secondly, the same soldiers are authorized to stop the same residents from returning to their homes. It would be pointless for Japanese spokesmen to deny these robberies. All soldiers have a marked aptitude for supplementing their meagre store of worldly goods. Since it has become a fashion to compare the present actions of the Japanese with deplorable practices adopted during the Great War, experienced observers might safely say that the only difference between the "scrounging" of private soldiers in Europe twenty years ago and the robberies committed by Japanese military now, is that the latter are more bare-faced. It would be equally pointless to deny that foreign residents are denied access to their homes after ten o'clock. It is but one of the many stupidities of the present situation that the curfew hour at one end of Hungjao Road is 12.30 a.m., while at the other end it is 10 p.m. What is more, although Europeans and Americans immediately get inoculated, without being ordered to do so, at the slightest sign of cholera, they are now informed that they cannot enter the sparsely populated Hungjao district of Shanghai without showing a certificate. Again, Hungjao residents cannot move their possessions to and from their own houses, or receive coal supplies, without a permit which can only be obtained from a gentleman whose office hours (so he told me) are from 8 to 8.30 a.m. Faced by these absurd restrictions, the unknown foreigner referred to in PENALISED'S letter might well be excused for losing his temper.

The time has long since arrived when people of this city should voice their indignation at unprovoked obstruction from the Japanese military. After all, we have been repeatedly told that the "China Incident" is being waged against Chiang Kai-shek's government, and neither against civilians, nor neutrals. We should, therefore, insist that the Japanese should not, under the plea of military necessity, continue interfering with our legal rights and personal liberties.

ALSO A SUFFERER.

Shanghai, June 16.

The Japanese Venture:
An Explanation

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—The perusal of JOE TOC TOQUE'S letter in the correspondence columns of your esteemed publication a few days ago produced a natural and comprehensible feeling of nausea in my mental as well as my organic structures. This feeling has since then subsided somewhat, under the gratifying influence of the subsequent storm of righteous indignation from a vast number of your correspondents.

Many of these wondered as to the why's and wherefore's of JOE'S flabbergasting attitude, so now I say to them: "Wonder not."

JOE has given himself away: whether he knows it or not, "toc-toc" is a quaint little expression of French slang, the most adequate rendering of which into the Saxon tongue would be "balmy"—or if you would rather have the locally more popular U.S.A. version—"nuts."

And "nuts" JOE undoubtedly is. All the symptoms are present: complete absence of logical reasoning, erratic statements, erratic construction, paradoxically coupled with a smug, authoritative tone and beaming self-satisfaction.

I shall not attempt to discuss JOE'S error of ways: others, more worthy and competent than myself, have already acquitted themselves of the task with a brilliancy I could never hope to attain. All I wish to do is suggest the explanation your many correspondents have asked for. And, having done so, I take the liberty of further suggesting that they refrain from judging JOE too severely: the poor little fellow belongs in the "nut-house," and must feel sorely bewildered and out of place in our evil world, with its strange conceptions of right and wrong.

With a word of thanks to the Editor for a portion of his valuable space, and a world of disdain to the smug little mud-slinger cowering behind his unusually adequate pseudonym.

JULIUS M. FELDMAN.

Bachelordom:
A Diversion in Rhyme

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Reference KUO SHENG HUNG'S letter in today's issue, maybe the following will suit the occasion.

BACHELOR BLUES

Too long have I tarried, I want to get married,
To carry the burden that others have carried.
I want to be wooing and billing and cooing,
And doing the same things that others are doing,
And stay at home Sundays, have cold meat on Mondays,
And never to blush at the mention of "undies."
At last to be able to have my own table,
And view it with pride though its legs be unstable.
To poverty's danger, no longer a stranger,
To bark at a wife o'er the family manger.
To work in the garden my muscles to harden,
A bath every Sunday, oh, I beg pardon.
At catalogues looking and holidays booking,
And trying to stomach a novice's cooking.
And doing the carving and "exes" and halving,
And working all night to prevent them from starving.
And cleaning the flat out, and putting the mat out
And letting the dog in and putting the cat out.
And silently creeping 'cos baby is sleeping
Awakened at four by the fowls we are keeping.
And doing the shopping, acquaintances dropping
And passing the pubs without looking or stopping.
And checking the measure of milkmen for pleasure,
And cleaning the knives in my moments of leisure.
A pram to be wheeling and spuds to be peeling
And mending the boots with a "do-it-now" feeling.
And dreaming of motors and blazers and boaters,
While feeling the roes of depressed looking bloaters.
But sweeping the flues is the job I refuse
As I doze in the throes of Bachelor Blues.

NON BACH.

JOE LOUIS PROMISES TO MAKE A CUTLET OUT OF MAX SCHMELING -
—WHO, IN HIS TURN, MAY MAKE A HAMBURGER OUT OF THE CHAMPION — FANCY, IF THEY REALLY DO IT.....

By SAPAJOU

If Promises Were Kept

that command to wait for the power. We read the narratives and get an impression of timidity and fearfulness. They wait behind locked doors. They are afraid of the Jews. They distrust themselves. But the Holy Ghost came upon them, and it is hardly possible to recognize them as the same men. They became conscious of a new force, and power, which manifested itself in those many ways recorded in the Book of the Acts. Gone is all fear. They throw open their doors, and openly and on the streets they preached Jesus, fearlessly confronting even the powerful leaders who had crucified their Master.

The Spirit of Power

And that which had been so strikingly manifested on the first day, is evident in all that follows. The Acts and the Epistles are the record of the working of the Holy Spirit. As the first four books of the New Testament are called the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and in contrast some one has called the Acts and the Epistles, Gospel of the Holy Spirit—the spirit of power and might, of council and wisdom. By that spirit lives are transformed. Take Peter as an example. In the Gospels the picture is of an impulsive, headstrong man. In the hour of peril, a coward. But pass on a few weeks. Here is Peter in the same Judgment Hall, himself a prisoner before the very men who had condemned his Lord. But he is a stranger to cowardice now. We read that they marvelled at his boldness. How is it? Why this sudden change? God has given to Peter the Spirit of Power. The promise of the Lord Jesus has been fulfilled, and now Peter has the spirit of boldness in place of cowardice.

And what happened to Peter has happened to many another in every age and country. When the Spirit comes, it banishes cowardice and all fearing, and enables men to appear before Kings and Governors for Christ's sake, and unafraid. It enabled the Saints and Martyrs, and holy men of God in all ages to witness a good confession, to bear a fearless testimony, even unto death. Have we not known it in some measure ourselves? When we are conscious of God's presence and power we cease to be afraid, and discouraged, weak and ineffective. We are conscious that we are his instruments, workers together with him. Gone is the fear of failure, the indecision, the weakness. We march to victory, we shout, "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon."

In the power of the Spirit men fling themselves with courage and confidence into tasks that they deemed impossible before. The Spirit comes upon the handful of disciples, and they turn the world upside down, as their opponents testified.

The Spirit came upon Francis of Assisi so that though he had neither wealth nor station, he entered upon the task of regenerating Italy. It came upon Luther when he was an unknown lecturer at Wittenberg, so that he dared to fling down his challenge to all false teachers and leaders. It came upon Judson and he entered Burma, Livingstone, and he entered Africa; Griffith John, and he came, out here to China—and many a missionary hero of today; and they go fearlessly to carry the Gospel to the ends of the earth. Dangers surround them. They endure the utmost hardness, but the Spirit carries them on, and they triumph over seeming impossibilities. The same Spirit is given to men and women in various walks of life, and they go out to do great things for God in the service of humanity. Merchant—teacher—doctor—engineer—sailor—soldier. In home and office, in factory and shop. There is no sphere and no occupation in which we may not be inspired and strengthened by the Holy Spirit of God. Thousands have proven that this Spirit is given and that it is a Spirit of invincible power.

What about ourselves today? We confess to believe in the Holy Spirit. We know that Christ's promise has been fulfilled where lives have been committed to Him. Why then this fearfulness? Why then all our weakness and our timidities? Why are we so often defeated? Read again this message of the great old Apostle to Timothy. Read it as from St. Paul to yourself. "For God hath not given us the Spirit of fear, but of power and of love, and of a sound mind, be not therefore afraid."

The Spirit of Almighty God

Sermon Preached in Holy Trinity Cathedral By Dean Trivett on June 5

TEXT:—"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear but of power and of love and of a sound mind....Be not therefore ashamed." 2 Timothy 1, 7-3.

TIMOTHY is at Ephesus; whither he has been sent to deal with certain difficulties that have risen in the Church in that city. Paul is at Rome, and the time is a few months before his martyrdom. Second Timothy is probably the last of St. Paul's letters that has been preserved for us, and while it is full of expressions of the tender affection he bears towards Timothy, there is also some stern criticism and a stirring call for the young man to brace himself anew to the conflict.

Timothy was placed in a post of responsibility, and there he was showing himself weak and timid in the face of danger. He distrusted himself. He was shirking his duty. The real trouble underlying all the rest was that he was forgetting that he did not have to rely in his own strength. God was working with him, and through him he had the promise of the power of the Holy Spirit. Timothy was not alone at Ephesus, God was there as well as with Paul in Rome. The Spirit was there to guide and direct; there was no need for timidity and fear. "I put thee in remembrance," says the old Apostle, "that thou stir up the gift that is in thee by the putting on of my hands." I wonder do not we need just such a warning in Shanghai today? Do we not need to hear across the years again the call to be strong and of good courage? Cowardice is an ugly thing. We hate to admit to ourselves that we are cowards, and much more to feel that others think it of us. Yes, it is an ugly thing, whether it manifest itself in physical fear, or in discouragement and despairing, hopelessness. In one way or another, and at times, we all give way to it. And yet cowardice can have no place in the character of the true Christian. We need Paul's words to-day. "I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift that is in thee....God hath not given us the Spirit of fear, but of power."

Sign of the Cross

At our baptism we were "signed with the sign of the Cross in token that hereafter we should not be ashamed to confess the faith Christ crucified and manfully to fight under his banner against sin the world and the devil." We have confirmed those vows made in our name, and we have received the Gift by the laying on of hands, the Holy Spirit with its sevenfold endowment, and we have been commissioned for service; and the work we have to do—in home or office—in school or camp—is God's work. It is God's work just as truly as the work of a clergyman or a doctor; may I remind you again—as I have so frequently reminded you in this pulpit—that divine and secular, as distinctive of quality of service, are false and misleading terms. God calls us to work for him, and in the way of duty all work is this work: and to each and every servant he says as he said to Joshua of old, "Be strong and of good courage, be not afraid." And again, "Only be strong and of good courage."

Have we forgotten God? God who has called and commissioned us and who gives to those who seek him the spirit of power. We have sung our Whitsunday hymns today. How often the phrase of St. Paul's has been on our lips. "Spirit of Power." What have we meant by it? The Greek word is familiar to us in our modern word "Dynamo." It is the machine which generates the electric current—that mysterious but tremendous force which lights our streets, and heats our houses, and drives our machinery. The dynamo is the generator of all that energy. The very word is identified with immense and almost irrestible power. And that is what the Spirit is. It is dynamo—a fountain of energy and force. The Christian man has to reinforce him, the spirit of resistless energy and infinite power. The Spirit of the Almighty God.

Have you ever been in a great factory when the shifts were changing, or for some reason operation was suspended? Many machines are idle, in others the wheels are feebly turning. The power is shut off. But turn on the power and the wheels fly. And just so with us. If we are weak and ineffective, it is because the power is turned off, but if Spirit filled, as we should be, we should manifest resistless and victorious power. Remember the promise of the Blessed Lord. That promise whose fulfilment we keep today. It was, "Ye shall receive power after the Holy Ghost is come upon you." And we shall find that one of the invariable effects of the coming of the Holy Ghost is this, timidity and weakness are replaced by a sense of power and consequent courage and effectiveness.

Take the first Pentecost as an illustration. They hardly needed

Sixty Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF JUNE 20, 1878

A Melbourne paper has the following, which is worth reproducing as a caution to the mercantile community both in Shanghai and at the outports, it being quite possible that so daring a swindler may find his way northwards:—Some clever swindling has been perpetrated recently upon various mercantile and auctioneering firms in Melbourne by a man about 35 years of age, giving the name of H. Eckhouse. The offender's mode of operation was by obtaining advances on forged bills of lading, and he conducted the frauds so skilfully, that he has been able to pocket an aggregate amount of about £1,400. It appeared that he represented himself to be in the sugar and tea trade, and stated that he had ships freighted with that description of merchandise due this month at Sydney. The bodies of the bills of lading he used were drawn out in handwriting like that of an office-boy, whilst certain figures and peculiar business marks were filled in by a more experienced hand, and his own name was endorsed on the back in another style of caligraphy. The names of the vessels and their captains, the ports, freights, and dates given were found to correspond exactly with entries in the shipping register, and the forged documents were most accurately drawn out.

WOMAN'S PAGE

A Shanghai Letter

By Hester

One of the results of prevailing extraordinary conditions is that we are being cheated out of our just summer rights. The Silly Season is upon us and in the normal course of seasonable thought we would be leaving Dull Care behind and using up the grey matter upon such topics as, our Pear-Shaped Men, the Shanghai Mind, the Summer Grass Widower, Heat and Humidity, and similar idle thoughts. We are a conservative people and our habits of action and mind are, if not of a high order, at least regular and consistent. Consequently we resent the fact that we must be bounced out of our regular rut and contemplate matters of exchange, or which way the war-cat is going to jump. It is doubtful if anyone alive can answer the questions which concern us most but we shall all hold our theories. The cost of living will concern housewives and some will fondly regard their old housekeeping accounts (if any are methodical enough to have retained such), and will reflect that, though they never suspected it at the time, "those were the days."

* * *

Cost Comparisons

We know that prices have soared tremendously during the past few weeks, but we may perhaps better know where we are as compared with formerly if we make a comparison with prices some three years ago. In the middle of June, 1935, some of the foodstuffs were not vastly different in price from the same things today, but it will be found, on reference, that the grand totals were quite a bit different.

There was a complaint voiced in the news that the peculiar behaviour of Exchange at that time (the dollar was 1*s.* 8*d.*) was making local products dearer and imported ones cheaper so that market prices, were rather higher than they had been formerly. Pork (if anyone eats that when there is not an R in the month) was twenty to forty cents a pound, and last week's market price was only five cents up on that. Mutton was 20-30 cents a pound, capon 50 cents, fowl 32 cents, and eggs 20 to 25 cents a dozen. Vegetables are much higher than three years ago, new potatoes, for example, being just four times the price. Lettuce is ten times what it was in 1935 while oranges and lemons are two to three times as much

Quoted market prices, though something of a guide, cannot be taken as the last world, as so much in Shanghai depends upon the shopper and the places she patronizes.

19th Century House Costs

It is always intriguing to read of housekeeping accounts of earlier centuries, not so much because we are interested in the amount of beef and beer which people could accommodate as because the housekeeping of a period casts much light on the social life of the times.

Following are accounts taken from the household book of a lady who ran a goodly establishment onwards from the year 1800, and methinks she would consider that housekeepers of her own standing in these days are sorry providers. Our lady hostess of the Regency period gives details from sedan chair hire to the taxes on hair powder, the re-hooping of bowls and re-lining of kitchen saucepans.

As with hostesses of the present time this lady's accounts and many of her troubles had much to do with servants. She kept three maids and a man inside, a gardener, and an odd-job man. Wages for the men were twelve guineas a year and two suits of clothes (incidentally Sam Weller's remuneration exactly, around 1845). Maids had from eight to eleven guineas a year plus uniform and we learn that 23 yards of print and three "body linings" were bought annually for maids' dresses. A present day amah would not think she was so well done to on similar terms.

As with housewives in England today we learn that regular help was a trouble from the entry: "Paid Mrs. Sherry for being with me seven days when without a cook, 5s." and, "Paid Sarah Evans, cook, a months wages discharging her directly, £1.1."

* * *

"Cook-Maid" Troubles

In this housekeeping diary we learn that, notwithstanding the fact that they were generously treated there was constant trouble with "cook-maids." The small beer and ale for her staff cost the lady £4 a quarter—quite a goodly sum then while tea was three-and-sixpence a pound, that being a special mixture for the kitchen. It was likewise queried by the good dame as to whether all the gin and brandy bought by her was consumed in the dining room! Theatre tickets at a shilling each were frequently purchased for the pleasure of the staff, and all their apothecaries' bills were paid by the mistress.

Items such as thirty-six yards of sheeting at two shillings a yard for servants' beds, iron spoons, silvered for kitchen use, "tea-board for the kitchen," stone plates, cups and "juggs," are details which help to picture life below stairs. There was a quarterly account for the oiling of the roasting-jack, and sundry repairs to utensils all of which, made of stout material, seemed to last almost a lifetime.

* * *

Catering Above Stairs

In the days when the can-opener figured not at all in the domestic life of the times, and when refrigerators were not known, it is remarkable with what opulence goods for household consumption were ordered. It has to be remembered though that houses meant something more than mere sleeping places between motor trips and hotel and cabaret patronage. All entertainments were carried on in the home, householders could settle for life in the one house, and there they could have around them all the mementoes which they might pick up in their journey through this Vale of Tears. Space was likewise no consideration, and there were excellent store-rooms and cellars and in the latter goods could be kept fresh in the hottest of English summers. They can now for that matter.

Among items of provisions ordered at one time we read of:

Four hams, each 45 pounds, and a ten pound cheek; half a hundred of powdered sugar, half a hundred of lump, and four loaves of fine sugar, with quantities of rice, tea, and spices.

Coffee and tea were expensive items, tea being nine shillings (for family use), and coffee six and sixpence the pound.

The stocking of the wine cellar was a little more difficult than our method of ringing up the supplier and getting the delivery coolie round in half an hour. Shanghailanders with a reputation for ample liquid capacity would scarcely order on the lines of our lady of 1800. For instance we learn that she had to get her wine shipped from Oporto with lots of trouble attached, for in addition to duties and landing charges the stuff had to be carried by road from Dover. The wine was £191, while duty and fees alone came to £91. Other items which appear with regularity were tubs of brandy, gin and rum, small ale and beer, milk punch and port, while the amount of Madiera ordered at one time was nine dozen bottles. This all together would make a nice little compradore's bill for ourselves, but if we had to pay in sterling at the present exchange, many of us would decide to go teetotal for life. Even with tea at something like $40 a pound, some would have to fall back on barley or clear water for liquid refreshment.

The old days were certainly ones of generous and opulent provision and if we have gained a lot in modern conveniences it is likely that our forbears knew something of comfort according to their own standards, and it is doubtful if, could they have looked into the future, they would have changed periods with us. Of course we have been considering only the life of one very well placed financially, and the poor knew another side of life. Their daily companions were want and poor dwellings, but that is another story entirely.

Wine and Capons

While on the subject of old-time good living I have at hand another set of memoirs commenced in 1749 when eating and drinking is again dealt with in some detail. After a long sea voyage the writer tells of landing at Eastbourne, then a poor fishing villiage, and of being conducted to a poor looking public house, the only one in the place. However, outside appearances were deceitful for the hostess showed them into a cheery room and soon had a good fire blazing.

When asked what she could provide she said that she was out of provisions as she had so few visitors but would give them what she could scrape together.

She did, and we are told that a a repast appeared consisting of: "as fine a dish of fish as ever was seen at Billingsgate, with excellent lobster and oyster sauces. This was followed by a pair of tender, well-dressed fowls, and we finished the ample repast with good old Cheshire cheese."

Failing wine they washed down the meal with tolerable ale, but the hostess was asked if she had wine and she said he had some of a sort. This proved to be most excellent claret and our memoir writer and friends each drank a couple of bottles.

Comparison of prices with those of the present day are of interest and we learn that the total charge for four hearty men was six shillings, including the wine. Those indeed were the days!

English Cooking

Today we hear a lot about the poorness of English cookery and though we know that much of the criticism is undeserved we let it go, as the world must have its little grouse, and that is as safe an outlet as anything. English people themselves grumble at the culinary arts of their own folk, but if their women could cook like very angels and prepare Heavenly manna itself the grumbles would continue as the habit is one of our amiable weaknesses. The pity of it is that we level so many complaints against our own institution and customs. Probably no other nation is so self-critical. But, when all is said and done, what is the matter with English cooking? What could be better than bread and cheese and a Spanish onion? Food fit for the gods. But, after all this talk of food for the body it is time for our readers to turn elsewhere and seek a little pabulum for the mind.

A Chat with Women Drivers

How Do You Start and Stop Your Car?

These are the two things you must do every time you drive, says an article in "Ford News." And to a certain extent, they're a demonstration of your skill. You might drive clear across the country and not once be called on to turn round, park on a penny, or change tyres. But you'll certainly have to start and stop, and the sureness and smoothness with which you do these two things testify to your driving ability.

You know "by heart" the routine motions for getting started, but check this list of points and see how many of them are part of your regular practice:

1 Do you make sure, before starting the motor, that the gearshift lever is in neutral position so that your car can't possibly leap forward?

2 Do you hold the clutch pedal down while starting the engine? Best driving practice suggests that this be done.

3 Are you patient about letting your motor really warm up before demanding that the wheels start turning?

4 Do you always start in first gear? (This question can have another answer in the winter. But first gear, normally, is starting gear.)

5 Do you raise the clutch very slowly and gently so that your car doesn't jump? And do you shift quickly to second....when car has travelled only a few yards ahead.... and into third as soon as you're up to twenty or twenty-five miles an hour?

6 Do you depress the clutch all the way down when you shift gears so that shifting will be silent and glide-like in motion?

7 And, finally, do you relax at the wheel, loosen your grip, drive with ease and composure....the while keeping all "six senses" alert for any kind of surprise?

Well, if this is the way you start your car .... you're certainly capable of keeping it going! And when you have to stop, you'll probably make one of those "perfect three-point landings" spoken of at aviation fields.

The Perfect Three-point Stop

1 Start "stopping" in good time, applying brake slowly, and gauging your distance so that the car comes to a gentle stop. Don't disengage the clutch until the last few feet.

2 Car should be parallel to the curb, about six inches removed, with front wheels slightly turned in.

3 Gearshift lever is immediately placed in neutral and parking brake pulled up .... lightly, if on level ground, so that car could be pushed backward or forward to accommodate another motorist .... but set firmly if on a slope and gear placed in reverse instead of neutral, so that the engine will help with the braking.

Good Driver Is Good Gearshifter

Gears shouldn't be a matter of mystery to the woman driver. We have gears in our kitchens .... on an egg beater we can see them going round! When you shift gears in your car you bring into action various sizes of these notched wheels, metal against metal. And making this shift smoothly, easily and quietly is one of the fine points in driving. Beginners should practise with the car parked and the motor shut off.

Always know the direction in which you're going to shift. See it in your mind and feel the lever travelling straight to its destination. Don't shoot off into reverse from first .... that's one of the things that causes screech and grind!

Always depress the clutch all the way down when shifting but take your foot off the clutch pedal entirely when you're safely into third and riding straight along.

Always operate the clutch easily and steadily; don't jam or jerk it. The clutch is not an emergency device and never needs to be used hurriedly except in such hazards as running onto a slippery pavement.

Always start your car in first, proceed to second, then to third. It is not good driving practice to shift from first into third, although plenty of women do it!

Always shift back to first at once, ready for a quick departure, when stopping at lights.

Always park with the gear in neutral and see that it is still in neutral when you return to the car. The position of the gearshift lever should be on your mind when you enter your car and again when you leave it.

Umbrella Topics

Here are a few hints on the care of umbrellas. When wet, do not stand an umbrella point downwards in the umbrella stand, for the wires will rust and the cover rot. Neither is it a wise plan to stand it wide open to dry, as this tends to stretch the cover.

The best plan is to shake it well to get rid of as much moisture as possible, and then to stand it half-open on the handle. A split in the cover of an umbrella can be mended successfully by covering on the underside with a strip of black adhesive tape and pressing this firmly into position.

"A brimful of chic" is the description given by its sponsors to this hat worn by Miss Marie Wilson. It is of natural-coloured straw topped with a black taffeta bow.

Creme de Menthe

This recipe for crême de menthe is very good. The green colouring may be omitted, if preferred white. This makes a large quantity, but if kept closely covered it will last any length of time.

Take 2lb loaf sugar, 2 breakfast-cupfuls boiling water, 2oz leaf gelatine, half teaspoonful oil of peppermint, sap green and icing sugar.

Put sugar and gelatine in separate basins, pour one cup of boiling water on sugar, the other on gelatine, when dissolved mix together.

Pour into saucepan and boil eight minutes. Flavour with the oil of peppermint, and colour, if wished, with green. Pour into shallow dishes and leave till next day.

Roll in icing sugar on a board, and cut into convenient pieces. Store in tins or wooden boxes.

Royal Family and Charity Guarantee

Minimum Sum Must be Promised, Deficits Made Good

Members of the Royal Family have given a lead to London society by adopting an entirely new policy towards patronage of charity functions.

Before promising to attend a ball, première, or concert they insist that the charity in question will benefit to the extent of a sum named by them.

Committees have to guarantee this minimum. Each member takes personal responsibility for a definite amount. If this is not raised the deficit must be produced out of their own pockets.

Hitherto all that has been required by royal patrons has been an "assurance," with no figure mentioned, and therefore no obligation on the part of the organizers if the proceeds of the evening did little more than cover expenses.

It is hoped that this practical gesture will put the whole business of charity functions on a sound economic basis.

There have been recent cases, where the turnover has reached a thousands pounds, of which the charity has received less than a hundred.

Ivory piano keys are best cleaned with a little eucalyptus oil on a clean rag.

Ideal Site for a Sun-dial

Stone figures are seen to advantage with a dark background such as that furnished by yew or other evergreen. Those of lead seem more fittingly placed in the open.

Ideal places for sun-dials are at the junction of the paths in a formal garden, on a small circular lawn or paved court. To set a sun-dial in the middle of a large lawn is to reduce it to insignificance.

Classical designs are reproduced in stone figures in sun-dials and bird-baths. A wise choice provides a lasting and always pleasurable ornament.

A little ammonia added to the water used for washing mirrors and other glass will produce a brilliant polish when the glass is dried.

Green pepper (chilli) is not hot this time of the year. Appetizing and refreshing, it is an article of food much used in warm and damp climates.
The Cantonese way of preparing this dish is to cut the pods into halves and stuff them with minced meat and other ingredients. They are first fried until the outer parts of the meat is brown, and then treated with a slightly sour sauce specially prepared for and cooked with each portion—a process similar to that of fricasséeing.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

ON BACHELORDOM

KUO SHENG HUNG's letter in yesterday's issue, concerning the small boy in a primary school, who when asked "Who is the happiest in the world?" replied with "A bachelor's life," and suggesting that the boy's father was probably the inspirer of the answer, is an interesting one. It may possibly give rise to much discussion, for all manner of strange speculations arise. Is Mr. Kuo right in assuming that the father gave the boy the answer? If he is, what sort of man can the father possibly be to let the cat out of the bag to his son, that marriage with his mother has not been roses, roses all the way? Or has the young stripling of twelve, watching the lives of his parents come to the conclusion that they must have been fools ever to have married? It is quite possible that the last is correct, for, if adults could understand the judgments of children on occasion, they would probably be surprised. A Chinese pupil of the age of 12 years may not have studied much foreign literature on the subject, but that would not prevent him acquiring a rough acquaintance with the subject from his own proverbs. Thus he would probably, quite early in his researches on the subject learn that "Nine out of ten matchmakers are liars" thereby conjuring up a pretty picture of how his father might have been cozened into marrying his mother. It would require no great amount of reading to learn that "A wife's long tongue is the staircase by which misfortunes ascend to the house." He might by close observance have realized the truth of another Chinese saying "Curse not your wife in the evening, or you will sleep alone," which seems to be a very materialistic version of the exhortation against letting the sun go down on one's anger, but when eventually he reads "A maiden marries to please her parents, a widow to please herself," he will completely realize how small a part man plays in the matter, and consequently need but little assistance to come to the conclusion which Mr. Kuo believes was inspired by the father. Later he may learn that "If heaven wishes to rain or your mother to remarry there is no way to stop them." On the subject of rain Shanghai is probably by now thoroughly convinced.

Of course when the lad gets older and can browse amongst the pages of foreign literature he will find that what his own writers have discovered has been learned in other countries. Lord Bacon, for example starts off well on the subject, but hedges after a while. Thus "A man finds himself seven years older the day after marriage," thereby tending to support the theory that married men do not live longer, but only seem to, while in his essay "Of Marriage and Single Life" he writes:—

> He that hath a wife and children hath given hostages to fortune; for they are impediments to great enterprise, either of virtue or mischief

Why he could not have said "He travels fastest who travels alone" it is difficult to understand, though it is perfectly clear that he had the "ball and chain" motive in his mind. Burton in the "Anatomy of Melancholy,"—so aptly named—finds that "Women wear the breeches," and that, of course, is not meant in any sartorial sense, either. Should the young Chinese lad wander into Spain he might learn how in the Spaniard's eyes there is no halfway house between success or failure in marriage for "The day you marry, 'tis either kill or cure," serving to indicate how desperate is this particular method of overcoming male loneliness. The French, Italians, Germans and the Netherlanders all agree that to "Marry in haste is to repent at leisure, but some deep philosopher has added to that "'Tis good to marry late or never," suggesting that, if the step must be taken at all, it should be put off as long as possible, thereby making married life seem shorter. But all the wise saws of the centuries, all the thinking of the world will not prevent men from tying knots with their tongues which they cannot undo even with their teeth, for coming back to the Chinese lad's own teachers "Beauty does not ensnare men: they ensnare themselves," and that unruly member, the tongue, helps them to their downfall.

There are some who seek to defend the institution of marriage by suggesting that the bachelor lives like a prince but dies like a dog, while the married man lives like a dog, but dies as a prince. The perfect cynic will remark that of the two he would prefer the former. He, like the Chinese youngster, sees the blithe freedom of the bachelor, the serving of not another's will, the happy, free existence of a "minstrel of the sky" to whom marriage is but a cage against the bars of which imprisoned Benedicks beat their wings in vain until death or the divorce court brings that liberty which the frustrated creatures are unable, or have forgotten how to enjoy. There are apparently people who enjoy married life, who can sing as did William Barnes

> Now voe I can zing on my business abrode
> Though storm do beat down on my poll,
> There's a wife brighten'd vire at the end of my road
> And her love, vos the jay o' my soul.

from which it would seem that a good warm fire after a cold day's work is about the summit of bliss which marriage can attain. Perhaps, after all, that small Chinese boy had heard the family talking. Human nature is such that it rarely gossips about happy marriages, though it rolls its tongue lovingly about those with any suggestion of disharmony, and he may thus have had the conclusion forced upon him that to ask a woman in marriage is asking for trouble. He may grow out of it in time. Of this, however, he may be certain, that if he lives long enough he will know the full signification of the cockney slang "storm and strife." But he will have learned it with so many other millions that it really does not matter in the scheme of things, and the only consolation he will find in life, is that which Gay, of "The Beggar's Opera" fame, found of marriage

> Wedlock, indeed, hath oft compared been
> To public feasts, where meet a public rout,
> Where they that are without would fain go in
> And they that are within would fain go out.

Emerson found it to be the same thing, so it must be correct, though this article seems after all to have been on marriage and only by inference on bachelordom.

Economic Boomerangs

The report from Tokyo that the Japanese Government will restrict exports of cotton yarns and piece goods to China, except to Hongkong and Macao, as from June 21, is most interesting. The explanation for this move adds piquancy to the situation for exports of this major product of Japanese commercial industry are to be curbed in order to "improve the balance of international payments" in Japan's economy. The leading Japanese commercial daily, the "Chugai Shogyo," authoritatively says that such textile exports will be limited from June 20 to December 20 to 23 million square yards of piece goods and 500 bales of cotton yarns. The "Asahi" praises the move as being inevitable since further exports to Manchoukuo, North and Central China, now claimed as within the "Yen Bloc," would "only serve to make worse instead of better the balance of Japan's international payments." It thus appears that economic and political relations between China and Japan have turned full cycle, for it was noticeable that just shortly before political relations became strained again, Japan's trade with China, particularly textile exports, increased heavily and profitably with what appeared to be a new rapprochement; now, in the height of hostilities and utter impairment of political relationships and with definitely claimed inclusion of North and Central China within the "Yen Bloc," Japan herself is constrained to restrict her own exports of one of her main products to China, her most important market. Economics may yet teach the lesson which diplomatic preachments invariably fail to do. Repercussions of this "economic boomerang" will be most interesting to observe.

U.S. and Germany

Whether the U.S. State Department will succeed in making the country "foreign policy conscious" or not depends just as much on international developments as it will upon any persuasion that the department may have to offer in the course of propaganda. There is a curious parallel between the United States and Great Britain in this respect. There was a time, and that not so many years ago, when the average Briton was content to let foreign policy look after itself, secure in the belief of the inviolability of the British Isles and their ability to look after the Empire. To a very large extent in recent years that attitude has changed and it is rightly contended that the British are more foreign policy conscious now than they have ever been in the past. That may be a source of strength or weakness for any government, since now none would dare to declare war of which the mass of the people disapproved, though at the same time an approved war would have behind it all the force of the majority of the people. There have been signs in the United States for quite a while that, pleasing as the isolationist doctrine may appear to some, there was about it serious dangers, not the least of which was that the country might be lulled into a feeling of false security and permit of developments which may prove injurious to widespread American interests. But behind that there is a question of principle which will appeal to the people of the United States. They have been seeing for years the wilful breaching of international treaties, and a decline in international morals which must necessarily make them wonder exactly with which countries are their signed pledges still good. There has of late been increasing tension between the United States and Germany, and it is reported that this latest outburst of Jewish persecution has done quite a deal to intensify it. Public opinion in the United States will not tolerate persecution of peoples ill-adapted to protect themselves, and a question of principle is arising which will do more than reinforce decisions on general policy and magnify issues which might otherwise be dealt with in a spirit of goodwill. If the State Department is able to bring home to the people of the United States that they can no longer continue a policy of isolation in foreign affairs, that the nation will have to play the part that its greatness is dictating abandonment of isolation will mean but one thing. The United States will take her rightful place as another of those great countries which are the remaining bulwarks of democracy. It might not necessarily mean that in all circumstances the United States would fight, but it would mean that in any struggle which was forced upon the democratic countries of the world the latter would receive the sympathy of that powerful nation, while it might also mean that the United States would probably be prepared to go to enormous lengths to prevent their collapse. If a collapse did occur the United States would have isolation thrust upon her, and in a manner to imperil all those interests which the State Department perceives have to be protected.

NATURE NOTES

The final chapter in the ant war that has been raging on my verandah for the past several days has been written. Forces far beyond their control have intervened and have obliterated all the combatants on both sides. These are an over-zealous coolie and torrential rain. The coolie with his broom made a clean sweep of the ants on the floor of the screened-in portion of the verandah where we take our meals during the warmer months and where the main fighting was taking place, while a sudden overflow from a water-spout, flooding the exposed part of the verandah, swept away the lines of communication of the aggressor ant army and the reinforcements hurrying to the scene of hostilities from their base. Thus an end has been put to a phenomenon of Nature which has afforded me a great deal of interest. But before leaving the subject I would like to record the fact that some days ago, before the aggressor ant colony launched its second foray, it changed quarters, moving from its old nest in a crack at the edge of the verandah coping into a big flower-pot standing near by. A stream of ants was observed pouring out of the crack, up the side of the flowerpot and into a round hole in the earth in the latter. Most of these ants were workers and they carried in their jaws little white objects of varying sizes, which, on closer inspection, proved to be eggs, larvae and pupae. Amongst the workers were a few soldiers and here and there a more or less distended Queen. The last was attended by workers, which seemed to be helping them along, pulling in front and shoving behind, just as one helps a fat lady up a hillside. The scene called to mind other such ant migrations seen when I was a boy in the interior of China. These, the farmers told me, were a sure sign that it was going to rain. Later in life, when engaged in zoological collecting work in other parts of the country, I was able to verify the fact that such ant migrations actually did presage heavy rains, a fact which has certainly been confirmed in the present instance, for the change of quarters described above took place just before the almost unprecedented spell of wet weather we have recently experienced here in Shanghai. Had the ant colony under discussion remained in its former site, it must inevitably have been drowned out; but, by moving to a new nest in higher ground, it was safe from the rains and was even able to carry out its campaigns against a second and a third colony. One begins to wonder whether its whole policy of aggression was not dictated by the urgent need to establish itself in some safer and more sheltered spot before the advent of the recent heavy rains. Also it is interesting to speculate upon the means by which the ants were warned of the impending disastrous change in the weather. They have no Siccawei Observatory to give them weather forecasts, but it must be presumed that in some way they are sensitive to meteorological conditions.—A. DE C. S.

Retort Courteous

THE late Lord Aberdeen, in "Tell Me Another" related the following story of Father Healy, whose witticisms are famous:

A young lady meeting him one morning, greeted him thus: "Oh, good morning, Father Healy. Now, won't you say something funny?" —to which came the prompt reply (or retort): "Well, I'm glad to see you; isn't that funny?"

A Wise One

A FARMER visited his son's college. Watching students in a chemistry class, he was told they were looking for a universal solvent.

"What's that?" asked the farmer.

"A liquid that will dissolve anything."

"That's a great idea," agreed the farmer. "When you find it, in what are you going to keep it?"

"Asking for it"

MR. G. N. Barnes, in "From Workshop to War Cabinet," tells of the reply made by Lord Wemyss to a very pompous officer who thought he had been spoken to unbecomingly by a temporary junior.

To which Lord Wemyss replied: "Well, I think that was deuced nice of him."

Hobson's Choice

DEAR I.P.

Because he has a sister, is that the reason why
You heartlessly insist, Sir, on making others sigh?
We're frantic with the weather and sick of all the rain
And birds, not of a feather, will hardly stand the strain.
So why should we now whimper, when we would rather laugh
And sing, or even simper, or with the punsters chaff?
Though thick with every brother, you must let us relax,
Nor jokes and laughter smother and plunge us "in a wax."
We're not devoid of humour, all jolly fellows too,
But we can stick no bloomer—we're not at all like you—
So try and raise our spirits and let the world rejoice,
Nor send us up in fidgets and say: "It's Hobson's choice!"—O.K.

Chinese Bomb Japanese Fleet in Yangtze

Four Warships Claimed to Have Been Sunk At Anking; Yangtze Begins to Flood; Kiukiang Reported Partly Under Water

Hankow, June 19.

AT least four Japanese warships were sunk by Chinese aircraft this afternoon near Anking, about 100 miles upriver from Wuhu, according to an announcement made today by Chinese Aviation Headquarters. Upon receipt of information that good weather conditions were prevailing down river, it is stated, eight Chinese heavy bombers took off in two flights to attack Japanese ships on the Yangtze. Although the raiders are said to have sighted several Japanese warships at Tungliu, about 20 miles upriver from Anking, they decided to bomb Japanese warships at Anking itself, stated by the Chinese Aviation Headquarters to number fifty.

At a height of three thousand metres, it is claimed, the Chinese 'planes "heavily bombed" Japanese craft below. Four warships are reported to have been sunk, and one badly damaged.

The Chinese bombers are stated to have been engaged by twelve Japanese pursuit 'planes, which were circling above to protect the warships. "Due to their greater speed," Chinese reports state, "the Chinese 'planes quickly got away, and all returned safely to their base." Chinese circles here are elated over the alleged success of the bombing operations.

Waist Deep In Water

A small Japanese detachment landed this morning at Tikang, west of Wuhu, stated the Chinese military spokesman today. "They were quickly repulsed by the Chinese," the spokesman went on to say.

Dispatches from the Yangtze front pay tribute to the Chinese soldiers defending the south bank of the river, where troops are said to be standing "waist deep in water," as the Yangtze is at present inundating the south bank near Kweichih, about thirty miles from Anking.

The Chinese troops were said by the spokesman to be "stubbornly resisting" the landing of the Japanese forces, "despite a terrific bombardment from aeroplanes and warships." —Reuter.

Yangtze Starts to Flood

Tokyo, June 19.

The rising waters of the Yangtze today threatened to pour over Hankow, already facing the menace of invasion by Japanese troops.

Nationalist Government leaders, immersed in the difficult task of evacuating women and children to interior places of safety in preparation for the Japanese assault, were struck with consternation by the news that the Yangtze is sweeping over Kiukiang to the east, according to reports received here late tonight from Nanking.

The Yangtze is rising steadily, because of heavy rains and Hankow is exposed to a serious danger of inundation, the reports said. One-third of Kiukiang already has been covered by the Yangtze waters. Kiukiang is located about 180 kilometres east of Hankow.

A report from Japanese military commanders in the Lunghai sector tonight stated that traffic between Lanfeng and Kaifeng, west of Hsuchow, has been completely restored. Repairs were completed by the Saruya and Itami engineer corps. Restoration of traffic between the two points was regarded as a heavy blow to the Chinese forces in the Lunghai area.

Refugees Flocking Into Hankow

Difficulties of Evacuation Increased; War Outbreak To Be Observed

Hankow, June 19.

While Hankow is still busily occupied with the evacuation of women and children into the interior, war refugees from west Anhwei, east Hupeh and north Kiangsu are pouring into Hankow at the rate of 8,000 a day, thereby increasing evacuation difficulties.

The latest reports from the front state that the Japanese are now attempting to destroy the powerful boom at Matang, below Kiukiang on the Yangtze river, by naval and air bombardments.

Although preoccupied with evacuation problems, the Chinese authorities have completed arrangements for observance of the first anniversary of the Sino-Japanese hostilities on July 7 by the entire nation. All principal cities will observe three minutes' silence at noon on July 7 in honour of those killed in the war.

Opportunity will be taken to emphasise "the gallant resistance put up by the Chinese during the first year of the hostilities and to urge the nation to make stronger united efforts to carry on the war."

Students and Foreign Currency

Tightening up the Government's efforts to check wastage of foreign currency, the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Finance have jointly promulgated regulations governing Chinese students already studying or intending to study abroad.

In future, according to the new regulations, only students pursuing courses connected with national defence and the military, engineering, and medical sciences will be allowed to study abroad. Students already three years abroad, it is further laid down, must return before September, otherwise no permits for remittance of foreign currency will be issued.

Exceptions Made

Exceptions are made in the case of those who are pursuing courses connected with national defence and the military, engineering and medical sciences, those who have attained a high scholastic standing, and those who receive special recommendation from Chinese Legations and Embassies.

The Chinese Government has instructed the entire nation to "go vegetarian" from July 7 onwards, on the occasion of the first anniversary of the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities. This order is in accordance with the Chinese custom of expressing mourning by abstaining from meat.—Reuter.

Shipping Firms and Flood Damage

Hankow, June 19.

In view of the continued rise in the level of the Yangtze River, a joint announcement has been published by Chinese and foreign steamship companies here stating they will not be responsible for damage suffered by goods in their godowns as a result of flood.

The announcement was issued by the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, Butterfield and Swire, Jardine Matheson and Company, the San Peh Steamship Company and the Ningshao Steamship Company.—Reuter.

Egypt May Introduce Conscription

Naval and Military Force Being Strengthened

Paris, June 19.

Egypt is contemplating the introduction of conscription for her armed forces and to build up as soon as possible a navy capable of protecting her coasts, such was the sensational report sent today to the French paper "Paris-Midi" by its correspondent in Cairo.

"Recent political events have convinced the Egyptian Government of the necessity of disposing of a strong armed force" the correspondent asserts "Consequently no effort has been neglected during the last months to build an Egyptian army and constitute a national war fleet.

"British dockyards have already received orders for the speedy completion of two destroyers, two submarines, two mines sweepers and two river gunboats "Pending the delivery of these units, Great Britain has put one ship of each type at the disposal of the Egyptian Government in order to permit them to train the officers and men of the future Egyptian Navy."

"A similar effort is being carried on in connection with the protection of the country against air attacks. Several anti-aircraft batteries will be acquired by Egypt in the near future, while measures are devised aerial bombings.

"Finally, conscription is being contemplated. This decision would give Egypt an army of 50,000 within three years' time" the correspondent concluded.—Havas.

Soviet Envoy Returns To Moscow

Expected Back in China in Month's Time

Hankow, June 19.

The Soviet Ambassador, Mr. Luganets Orelsky, accompanied by his wife left Hankow yesterday by air en route to Moscow for a short trip. They took off from here in the morning and arrived at Urumchi, in Sinkiang province, the same afternoon.

While the Ambassador's mission to Moscow has not been disclosed, it is understood that he is returning to China in a month's time.—Reuter.

Elections in Eire Favour Mr. De Valera

Great Victory Gained By Government Party

Dublin, June 19.

The complete eclipse of the supporters of Mr. William Cosgrave by those of Mr. Eamon de Valera was the sole topic of discussion here today. Increased support has been shown to the Government Party, Fianna Fail, and every constituency reports that this election has proved to be the "greatest victory of Mr. de Valera's career."

The latest results give Mr. de Valera 52 seats, Mr. Cosgrave 27 seats, and the Labour and Independent candidates three and five seats respectively.

Mr. William Cosgrave, the Leader of the Opposition United Ireland Party, has been elected for Cork City, but the poll fell substantially, showing a lack of confidence in his policy. Hitherto six Ministers have been re-elected, all with increased majorities.

The latest returns indicate that Mr. de Valera is likely to have six gains, equivalent to a majority of 12 in the new Parliament, which would be the largest majority he ever secured. In the old Dail the Government had 67 seats and other parties 69.

The general opinion is that if Mr. de Valera fails to obtain a majority, there may be another election in October, as there is no inclination between Mr. de Valera and Mr. Cosgrave to collaborate.—Reuter.

Conspiracy to Possess State Oil Lands

Sacramento, June 18.

The Governor, Mr. Frank F. Merriam, today ordered a full investigation of an alleged conspiracy to obtain possession of state oil lands valued at $1,000,000.

The order was issued following announcement of affidavits accusing Mr. Carl Sturzenacker, chief of the California State Division of Lands, and Mr. A. H. Alexander, Petroleum Production Inspector at Wilmington, of organizing a company to file claims against valuable oil fields along the tide lands near Wilmington and Long Beach.

The affidavits were sworn to by Mr. J. M. Midgley, draftsman for the State Lands Office, and a former fellow employee, Mr. Bert McAtee.

The company alleged to have been formed by Mr. Sturzenacker and Mr. Alexander was said to have included fourteen persons. All were expected to be called to testify during the State's investigation.—United Press.

Another Manchoukuo Border Clash

Tension Reported in Tokyo Official Circles

Tokyo, June 18.

Tension in Japanese Government circles was noticeable here tonight following Japanese reports of another serious clash between Soviet and Manchoukuo border guards. One Manchoukuo guard was reported to have been killed in the clash in which both sides were reinforced after heavy exchanges of machine-gun fire.

The Japanese reports alleged the Soviet border patrols near Hungchun precipitated the clash by opening machine-gun fire on a Manchukuoan patrol.—United Press.

Bombing Discussions

Paris, June 18.

The aerial bombardments of Spanish open cities and the British initiative to form an international committee which would investigate such air raids, are understood to have been the subjects discussed this afternoon at the meeting of the Foreign Minister M. Georges Bonnet and Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador here.

Britain, Sweden and Norway are ready to co-operate on a body of investigation, but the United States have apparently not accepted the invitation to be represented.—Havas.

Suburbs of Valencia Again Raided by Nationalist Aeroplanes

Several Villages Suffer Heavily in New Attacks; Loyalist Defence Line Crumbles

Valencia, June 19.

Nationalist planes bombed the Valencia suburbs of Grao, Cabanal and Malvarrosa twice yesterday, at 1.30 and 2.50 o'clock in the afternoon. The raiders also bombed several villages near Valencia. In the village of Masamagrell, six persons were killed and 15 wounded, and at the small harbour town of Gandie, 8 persons were killed and 24 injured.

Alicante was likewise once more bombed by the Nationalist air force yesterday. Eleven persons were killed and 27 injured during the bombardment, it is stated.—Trans-Ocean.

Gandia, June 18.

Nationalist bombers appeared over this city today and carried out yet one more of their disastrous bombardments, killing eight and wounding 24 residents.

Franco aircraft also raided Alicante today, bombing the waterfront section of the port. The toll mounted to 11 dead and 27 injured.

Several villages in the province of Valencia were visited, too, as the attackers kept busy. Heavy casualties were sustained in the places bombed, especially in the region of Masamagreil, where there were six people killed and 15 maimed.—Havas.

Defence Lines Collapse

Hendaye, June 19.

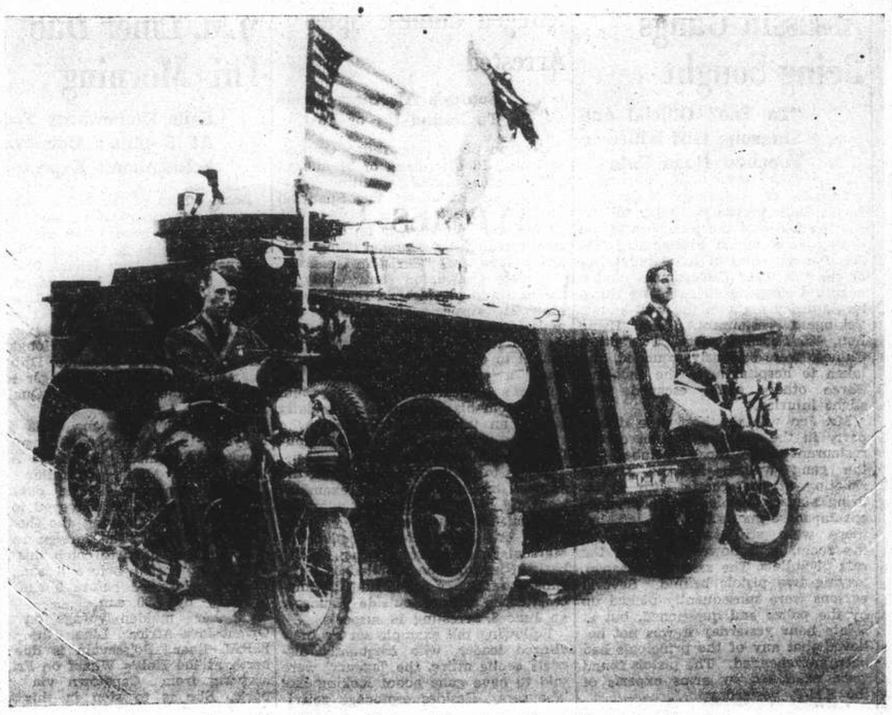
The Spanish Republicans' first line of defence south of Mijares collapsed today as Nationalist troops poured across the shallow Mijares River at four points despite the destruction of bridges by the fleeing Republican forces.

The Nationalists drove toward Sagunto and Valencia along an eighteen mile front in one of the most bitter offensives of the Spanish war. The immediate Nationalists objectives were the occupation of Onda, Bechig and Burriana.

While the Nationalists were driving toward Valencia, Republican forces battered at Nationalist units holding out at Villa Real, war-torn scene of a dozen sanguinary battles since the beginning of the civil war.

The Republicans staged persistent counter-attacks against the Nationalist on the Villa Real front, pounding at the Franco lines with tanks and artillery, but the Nationalists appeared to be holding their ground.

The Nationalist drive was fast developing into a broad offensive with four powerful spearheads pounding the Republican defences. One unit of seasoned Galician troops crossed the river east of Villa Real and reached the outskirts of Burriana, a second column, the main Nationalist force, fought off the Republican counter-offence at Villa Real, a third column of Navarrese units meanwhile crossed the Mijares River, continuing their advance toward Onda and Bechi. Mixed units of Galicians and Castillians meanwhile drove toward Espadilla and Onda.—United Press.



Even the Army's Colour Guard is Now Mechanized

So mechanically-minded has the U.S. Army become that even the colour guard is mechanized these days. In this picture, taken at Fort Knox, Kentucky, the National and First Cavalry regimental colours fly proudly from an armoured car escorted by motor cyclists armed with sub-machine guns.

Alleged Foreign Aid to China Stirs Japanese Press

Britain, France and Russia Under Attack; French Newspapers Surprised at Allegations

Tokyo, June 19.

THE Japanese press is becoming increasingly exercised over alleged foreign help to China. In this connection Great Britain is being indirectly attacked, but France, like Soviet Russia, is being openly denounced. The "Nichi Nichi," in an article today, says that the statement made by the Foreign Minister, General Ugaki, on Friday—that some Powers are prolonging the conflict by encouraging China--is understood to be a warning to certain countries.

If France is not really assisting Hankow, the newspaper asserts, she must prove it by facts and not mere statements.

Especial prominence is given by Japanese newspapers to the alleged construction by China and Russia of a railway from Chungking to Sinkiang via Chinghai. This line, it is stated would bring China's wartime capital within 67 hours of Moscow.

The "Asahi" accuses France of forgetting the spirit of the Franco-Japanese understanding of 1907, under which the contracting parties undertook to assure peace and security in the regions adjacent to their own territories. Japan, therefore, the newspaper argues, is entitled to a free hand in Hainan.—Reuter.

French Newspapers Reply

Paris, June 19.

The recent anti-French campaign carried on by the Japanese Press is still causing repercussions in French newspapers who express surprise at the accusations levelled in Japan. The local news organs refute Nipponese allegations of arms transports to China through Indo-China and query the Japanese declarations, especially in view of the fact that until quiet recently no detrimental statements had been made about the presence of German military advisers in Hankow.

"L'Ordre," conservative Centrist organ, deems the Anti-Paris campaign "of General Kazushige Ugaki, Foreign Minister in Tokyo, and the Government-inspired Press, both unjust and blundering considering the fact that there has been neither the alleged transit of arms through Indo-China to China, nor the asserted arrival of a French military mission to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek....whereas Japan could make real serious accusations against its German ally, who has heretofore despatched to China 60 or 75 per cent. of the total foreign armaments received by the Hankow Government."

Recalling the presence in Hankow until lately of General von Falkenhausen, leader of the German military mission which was only recently officially recalled, the same news organ writes that even now "those members of the mission who did not wish to return to the Reich have been authorized to stay in China."

The newspaper expresses indignation over the fact that reports of the breaches of neutral policy falsely ascribed to France "have been silently tolerated in Tokyo, when it was Germany who was really concerned." "Furthermore, these breaches have not prevented Tokyo from concluding a political accord with the Reich," "L'Ordre" continues.

Planned Before Hostilities

And with regard to reported Franco-Chinese parleys and the conclusion of an agreement on the construction of a South China railway, the news organ recalls that these conversations were begun before the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities last August.

"The Japanese Press campaign is not only unjust but also blundering. We wonder what it aims at? "We are fully aware that the Japanese are seeking to frighten us, but in trying this, they show an ignorance of the French character. The Japanese Press accusations, General Ugaki's 'regrets' and hidden threats will merely result in French opinion becoming hostile towards Japan and arousing definite and true sympathy for China."

Pointing out why Japan should refrain from rousing antagonistic feelings in France, "L'Ordre" recalls that France's decision to ban the transport of war materials through Indo-China in the future was only a courteous move vis-a-vis Japan.

"We abided and will abide by this decision, but one must remember that international law does not compel us to apply such a measure and Japan cannot invoke our neutrality since legally a state of war has not been declared....Suppose we are angered and declare to the Japanese Government, 'The false charges you are making against us will become a reality and henceforth war materials for China will receive free passage through our territory,"—this would only be a reply to Japan's attitude towards France. But it would certainly not simplify the Japanese Army's operations!"—Havas.

Japan to Reduce Book Imports

Ban on Fashion Magazines And Light Literature in New Ministry Order

Tokyo, June 19.

Further curtailing the influx of books, magazines and newspapers from abroad, which has already been considerably affected by the Government's control of foreign exchange and imports, book-importers in Japan have been warned that henceforth they will not be granted permits to import fashion magazines and light literature.

The Japanese Finance Ministry, however, will not restrict the importation of writings on heavy industry, aeronautics, mining and other subjects which might be of aid in carrying on Japan's campaign in China.

The 12th convention of medical university librarians recently voted to petition the Education and Finance Ministries and the Cabinet's Planning Board to relax restrictions on the importation of foreign medical books. The librarians' meeting also decided to make photostatic copies of imported books, somewhat as Japanese scholars two centuries ago used to copy Dutch books when few of them were available.

Japan imported foreign books and periodicals to a total value of nearly £500,000 last year, of which 25 per cent. came from the United States, 25 per cent. from Germany, 20 per cent. from Great Britain, 15 per cent. from France and the balance from Italy, the Soviet Union and other countries.—Reuter.

New World Flight to Be Made

Mr. Howard Hughes Awaits Renewal of Permits

Washington, June 18.

Mr. Howard Hughes, millionaire oil industrialist, motion picture producer and aviation enthusiast, will begin a flight around the world as soon as he obtains renewal of lapsed permits to fly over European countries, his friends said here today.

Mr. Hughes, who has repeatedly broken the transcontinental speed record, already has applied to the Department of Air Commerce here for a permit to begin the flight. Mr. Hughes' friends said there was no doubt that his American permit would be forthcoming. It probably will be held up, however, until the foreign countries involved renew Mr. Hughes' permits.

Mr. Hughes established a transcontinental speed record last year in crossing the United States from Burbank, Calif., to Newark, N.J., in seven hours, 28 minutes and 27 seconds, averaging 332 miles per hour. The distance was 2,490 miles.—United Press.

New German Protest To Prague

Czech Aeroplanes Over the German Frontier

Prague, June 19.

The German Minister in Prague, Dr. Elsenlohr, lodged a protest with the Prague Foreign Office yesterday morning against the violation of the German frontier by Czech military aeroplanes. He demanded a strict investigation and punishment of those responsible for the incidents.

The following official communique was issued here early yesterday afternoon:

"The reservists called to the colours at the end of May for special manœuvres, have been demobilised during the last few days. The training of the reserves is now proceeding normally."—Trans-Ocean.

Britain Prepares Against Raids

Elaborate Warning Scheme Created; Country Divided Into 100 Districts

London, June 18.

Arrangements made for warnings in the event of air raids are detailed in an Air Raid Precautions Memorandum issued by the Home Office yesterday.

For the purpose of the scheme the country is divided into more than 100 separate warning districts, and it is proposed that warning messages should be distributed to each of these districts as it became threatened in the progress of a raid.

Messages would be distributed over General Post Office telephones to individuals named in prearranged lists. When it appears possible that a certain district or districts may be raided, a preliminary caution message is to be sent to the principal officers of local services and to those responsible for blast furnaces, explosives factories and other industries where fairly lengthy preparations must be made.

The preliminary caution message would be entirely confidential in character in order to avoid unnecessary public alarm and dislocation of industrial activity if the air raid should not materialize. If the threat of attack were removed, the preliminary caution message would be washed out by a cancel caution message, and the public would know nothing about it.

Five Minutes Warning

If the movement of raiders supported the belief that a particular district or districts would be attacked, an action warning message would be distributed to all on the warning list. This would include air raid precaution services, local government offices, operators of warning signals, headquarters and divisional police stations, fire brigade headquarters and certain public utility and industrial undertakings.

The delivery of an action warning will be timed to give not less than five minutes notice of the approach of raiders.

After the raiders had left a district, the action warning message would be cancelled by a "raiders passed" message. The four messages involved would be communicated on telephone by a code of colours.—Wireless through Reuter.

Sen. Copeland's Death Leaves Vacancy

Important Commerce Post Without Successor

Washington, June 19.

The death of Senator Royal S. Copeland leaves vacant the chairmanship of the important Senate Commerce Committee. His successor was problematical since the four Senators ranking behind him are already chairmen of other committees.

The ranking member and normal successor, Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat of Texas, heads the Military Affairs Committee. The others are heads of committees but probably would be asked to drop their present positions for the Commerce post.

Senator Copeland's death also leaves vacancies in the Senate Appropriations, District of Columbia, Education and Labour, Immigration and Road Committee.—United Press.

Firmer U.S. Foreign Policy

State Department Launches Campaign to Build Stronger Position; Effects in Far East

Washington, June 18.

THE State Department today quietly launched a campaign to make the United States "foreign policy conscious", an apparent prelude to an increasingly firm American stand in international affairs. Effects of the campaign were expected to be felt in the Far East, particularly in China, since the State Department is believed anxious to support the world democracies in a stand against totalitarian states such as Japan which are regarded here as responsible for the current wave of treaty violation and unprovoked aggression.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Cardell Hull indicated that the State Department's campaign, through press releases, official speeches and diplomatic communications to foreign powers, would attempt to encourage Americans to take a direct interest in American foreign affairs. Americans will be encouraged to express their views on foreign policies of the United States Mr. Hull indicated, in order that the State Department will have a definite gauge on the policy Americans desire.

State Department officials said the United States today faced questions of foreign policy more grave than any in many generations. They said an attempt consequently was being made to consolidate public opinion in support of the Administration's foreign policies in order to give weight to the American position in world problems.

Officials Outline the Choice

State Department officials said the United States must decide immediately whether to "continue and strengthen moral support of the democracies or attempt a policy of isolation" The State Department campaign links in closely with strained American-Japanese relations and increasing friction between the United States and Germany, Washington observers believed.

Administration leaders here have made no effort to conceal the belief that Japan, Germany and Italy have been largely responsible for the widespread disregard for the sanctity of treaties and international lawlessness. Some observers believed the next session of Congress would reconsider the entire scope of American foreign policy. Mr. Hull said today that he would welcome such a study.

State Department officials indicated that the failure of the totalitarian states to observe treaties or live up to their word left the United States only two choices in planning future foreign policies. The first, which the Administration is believed to oppose, would involve the abandonment of American interests abroad and the adoption of a strict policy of isolation. State Department officials regard an isolationist policy impractical. The only other choice, it was indicated, is a firm stand with Britain and France against aggressor nations. —United Press.

Revision of Neutrality Urged

Washington, June 19.

A complete revision of the United States Government's policy of neutrality, was advocated today by Senator Key Pittman, Democrat of Nevada and Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in an interview with Press correspondents.

He added that Congress will probably be led to revise the Neutrality Law so as to take account of all questions relative to freedom of the seas, the rights of neutrals and the limitation of methods of war. To make others respect treaties, the Senator advocated that economic pressure be applied in the event that any countries violate sacred pacts. "Economic pressure is the most potent argument," he said.

Senator Pittman also recalled that the Senate had adopted, on his proposal, a resolution condemning aerial bombardments of civilian populations. He stressed, too, that legislation adopted must render efficacious such a policy applied against violators of treaties.

He concluded, "I envisage the interdiction of exports of bombers and bombs."—Havas.

H.M.S. Hardy to Be Given Nelson Relic

London, June 18.

A coup of Admiral Lord Nelson's prayer before battle is to be presented to the officers and men of H.M.S. Hardy, Flotilla leader in the Mediterranean.

The copy belonged to Lord Nelson's flag-captain at the battle of Trafalgar and was sold at auction with other Nelson relics yesterday. —Wireless through Reuter.

Vancouver Premier to Confer with Unemployed

Vancouver, B.C., June 17.

Mr. T. D. Pattullo, Premier of British Columbia, today consented to confer on June 20 with 1,000 jobless men on sit-down strike holding the post office and library and demanding federal relief.—United Press.

Former Japanese Commerce Minister to Head Development Company

North China Concern Will Be Under Control of Mr. S. Yoshino; Inauguration This Month

Tokyo, June 19.

Mr. Shinji Yoshino, former Minister of Commerce and Industry who resigned in favour of Mr. Seihin Ikeda on May 26 in the reorganization of the Konoye Cabinet, today was reliably reported to have been selected as president of the Y.350,000,000 semi-official North China Development Company.

Mr. Yoshino's appointment would pave the way for an early inauguration of the mammoth concern. Mr. Kenji Kodama, former president of the Yokohama Specie Bank, was recently named president of the Y.100.-000,000 Central China Rehabilitation Company.

Preparations for the organization of the two concerns are progressing satisfactorily and they are expected to be established simultaneously at the end of August or early in September, Domei was informed.

Contracts, budgets for operating the two firms and other matters have been arranged by the organizing committee, headed by Baron Seinosuke Goh.

Formal applications for organizing the companies will be tendered by Baron Goh after a decision is reached on the amount of capital to be invested by the Government.

A Y.35,000,000 North China Telegraph and Telephone Company will be organized in the near future without waiting for the establishment of the two development firms.

A ceremony inaugurating the company, a Sino-Japanese concern registered in China, will be held in Peiping at the end of this month. Final agreement on the organization of the telephone company was reached by the Ministry of Communications and other officials concerned after consultations over a period of two months on plans mapped out by investigators sent to China.—Domei.

Nazi Jewish Purge Offends U.S.

Breach with Germany Said To Be Widening; Troopers Active in Berlin

Washington, June 18.

Administration officials indicated here today that the breach between the United States and Germany was widening as they studied latest reports of Nazi terrorism and persecution renewed against German Jews.

No official comment on the developments in Germany was forthcoming, but officials indicated they believed the present Nazi purge against Jews violated all humanitarian principles, especially since the attacks have been directed against small shop-keepers and other Jews too poor to flee from their native land.

Friction between the United States and Germany has been growing for many months, mainly because of the German persecution of Jews. Some Washington observers believe this friction has reached serious proportions.—United Press.

American Showrooms Involved

Berlin, June 18.

Nazi Storm Troopers and hysterical Germans continued their relentless attack on German Jews on an enlarged scale today and broadened their activities to include several American companies as German-American tension heightened.

The Nazi campaign was directed at eliminating German Jews from Germany's economic and cultural life and was believed renewed to take the minds of Germany's millions off Czechoslovakia.

The present outbreak of anti-Jewish activity, it was learned today, was planned well in advance by the Nazi storm troopers after Herr Adolf Hitler had been forced to abandon—at least temporarily—any military invasion of Czechoslovakia because of the French warning that such action would mean war.

Storm Troopers were instructed to list Jewish shops and Jewish residents in their respective districts before the outbreak of the present intensified persecution of Jews.

The attacks today involved two American-owned showrooms of the General Motors Co. which were daubed with painted question marks by Nazis who stalked through the streets, throwing terror into the Jewish community. Question marks daubed on the American property were intended to indicate "doubt" regarding the status of ownership.

A United Press survey of the hardest hit Jewish sections of the city revealed that at least forty per cent. of the shops on the main streets were daubed with red paint, the Nazi designation for Jewish shops.—United Press.

New German Order

Berlin, June 19.

A fresh anti-Jewish movement broke out here yesterday evening. The police ordered all Jewish shopkeepers to have their names painted on the windows of their establishments, in letters eighteen inches high by six inches broad, to be inscribed in white paint. As the lettering must be placed in the middle of the shop-windows, it obscures the displays of goods inside.

Jews were instructed to carry out the order before closing up their shops last night, hence there was a frantic rush for sign painters.

The apparent object of the order is to make clear which establishments are owned by Jews.—Reuter.

M.P.'s Caustic Reply To Germany

"Choose Someone Bigger Than Yourself to Bully"

London, June 18.

"If you must bully someone, why not choose someone bigger than yourself?" telegraphed the British M.P., commander O. Locker-Lampson to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today in a plea for the cessation of the reported persecution of racial and religious minorities in the Reich.

Commander Locker-Lampson, Conservative of Handsworth, Birmingham, addressed Herr Hitler, "Sir, since the "Berliner Tageblatt", your official organ, singles me out for attack, as the only British Member of Parliament thus honoured, I take the liberty of addressing you personally in this reply.

"All true English well-wishers of the real Germany read with dismay your renewed attack upon helpless minorities. You come from a race second to none in bravery. Honour meant much in the old Vaterland. How can you continue this un-German persecution of people who have done you no wrong? Why do you only attack the feeble, few and innocent?

"Sir," the telegram concludes, "we beg you to put an end to this backward butchery, and if you must bully someone, why not choose someone bigger than yourself?"—Havas.

Aluminium in Germany

Berlin, June 19.

Technical research work with light metals has had an enormous influence on the extended use of aluminium in Germany. Copper, zinc, tin and similar metals are rapidly losing ground to this popular light alloy. Production has risen from 32,700 tons in 1929 to 120,000 tons in 1937 while there has been a tremendous drop in prices.

In 1850, one kilogramme of aluminium cost as much as 4,800 Marks, and in 1890 it was still as much as 25.1 Marks, while today the same quantity can be bought for 1,35 Marks.—Trans-Ocean.

No Food Shortage In Chungking

Luxuries Sent by Train To Hankow and by Ship The Rest of the Way

There is no shortage of foodstuffs in Chungking, since the province itself is practically self-supporting and the usual luxuries continue to reach the city by train, writes a correspondent from that city to the "North-Chnia Daily News." His letter, which was dated June 13, arrived here on June 19, rather in contrast to a letter from this journal to him which took exactly a month; the difference, of course, is due to the fact that his letter was flown down from Chungking to Hongkong.

As a matter of fact, the letter from this journal reached him fairly quickly, "as letters almost never take less than a month, and I have known of instances where they have taken two months; on an average, it may be reckoned, letters by post take six weeks," he writes. Actually, he is today receiving his copies of the "North-China Daily News" far more quickly than usual.

In normal times, the "North-China" through ordinary channels takes almost a fortnight to reach Chungking. This particular correspondent however, is receiving his copies of the paper by air mail within four to seven days—the paper going to Hongkong by steamer and the balance of the journey by air. "This may seem extravagant, but we felt it was well worth the extra expense," he writes.

"A Curious Place"

Chungking, he states, is a curious place at the moment, for, although it is official seat of Government and the Chairman of the National Government, Mr. Lin Sen, is there, all decisions of any importance are taken at Hankow.

Foodstuffs are plentiful, while the "luxuries of life, such as Ceylon tea, sugar and beer," travel up to Hankow by train and are shipped the rest of the way. The importers have not the slightest fear of not being able to dispose of anything they bring up, as people are quite willing to take anything allotted to them, and would be willing to take even more, "if they could get it."

Communication by other than air and train services with southern China is made possible by a motor road, according to this correspondent, who states that a friend now in Yunnan proposes motoring to Chungking by means of a 920-mile long highway running from Yunnan to a point opposite Chungking; the journey is expected to take seven days.

Fourth Marines Church

Another capacity congregation attended the church service and concert programme held in the Grand Theatre yesterday morning, by the Fourth Marines. Chaplain Frank R. Hamilton, of the Fourth Marines, conducted the service and delivered a most interesting sermon on the subject "In The Beginning, God." As a special feature in the service four members of the Fourth Marines' Band rendered a "Sacred Melody." The Fourth Marines' Band, under the capable direction of Staff Sergeant William R. Stuart, opened the service with the prelude "Lament" by White and also rendered the beautiful selection "Flower Song" by Bennet as an Offertory number. Mr. Willis Hathaway, of the Navy Y.M.C.A. Staff, conducted the singing of the two hymns, and the Fourth Marines' Band furnished the music.

Following the service, the Chinese Harmonica Society Orchestra presented an excellent concert. The concert opened with the Orchestra's rendition of the stirring march "The Thunderer" by Sousa, followed by Suppe's noted overture "William Tell", both selections being directed by Professor C. H. Wang. Featured harmonica soloist of the Orchestra, was Mr. C. L. Wang, who rendered Paderewski's lovely "Minuet." The selection was so enthusiastically received that Mr. Wang was recalled for an encore. Under the direction of Mr. C. L. Wang, the Chinese Harmonica Society Orchestra continued the programme with the selection "Carmen" by Bizet and concluded with the playing of the American National Anthem.

Lesson Sermon

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"Is the universe, including man, evolved by atomic force?" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon read on Sunday, June 19, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world. Golden Text: Psalms 124:1, 3– "Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson Sermon was the following from the Bible: Jeremiah: 51:15. He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heaven by his understanding." The Lesson Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Whatever reflects Mind, Life, Truth, and Love, is spiritually conceived and brought forth; but the statement that man is conceived and evolved both spiritually and materially, or by both God and man, contradicts this eternal truth."

Duke of Windsor's Birthday

London, June 19.

The Duke of Windsor's 44th birthday, falling next Thursday, will be royally celebrated in London when 200 guests hold a special dinner in the First Avenue Hotel. All these people are members of the Octavian Club, which was formed on the eve of the Duke's marriage to the former Mrs. Ernest Simpson.

The "Sunday Dispatch" reports another interesting feature of the Duke's birthday, writing, "A small packet inscribed, 'To uncle David, with much love,' will greet the Duke when he sits down to breakfast on his birthday. This packet will be from his nieces, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. The packet will contain a gift obtained from one of the court jewellers."—Havas.

Cutty Sark Makes Her Last Voyage

London, June 18.

When the famous China tea clipper Cutty Sark reached the Nore today after her last voyage to the Thames from Falmouth, Admiral Sir Edward Evans, Commander-in-Chief at the Nore, boarded her and took command.

A big crowd watched the proceedings, as the vessel's fame and the story of her dash from Shanghai in 1872, when she sailed home rudderless in 122 days, are known to all.—Wireless through Reuter.

Vice-Admiral Le Bigot Gives Reception

Distinguished Attendance At Brilliant Function

Vice-Admiral Le Bigot, commander of the French Naval Forces in the Far East, and the officers of the French cruiser Lamotte Picquet, gave a brilliant reception aboard the flagship, on Saturday.

Among the large number of guests who attended this function, were: the Belgian Ambassador to China and Baronne Guillaume, the British Ambassador to China and Lady Clark Kerr, the Polish Minister to China and Baronne de Weydenthal, the Czechoslovakian Minister to China, Mr. Tani, Japanese Ambassador-at-large; the Danish Minister to China and Baronne de Oxholm, the Swedish Minister to China and Baronne Beck Fris, the Swiss chargé d'affaires, the counsellor of the French Embassy to China and Mme. F. Knobel, the French Acting Consul General and Mme. P. Augé, Admiral H. Yarnell, commander of the U.S. naval forces in the Far East, Maj.-Gen. Telfer-Smollett, commander of the British military forces, in Shanghai, Rear-Admiral Nomura, and many others.

The flagship was specially decorated for that occasion, and a temporary spell of good weather contributed to the success of this reception which lasted well into the night.

It is announced that the Vice-Admiral Le Bigot sails today for Nanking and Wuhu in the French gunboat Dumont d'Urville, which arrived on Saturday. Capt. Gribelin commander of the cruiser Lamotte Picquet is in charge of the local French Naval Station during the Vice-Admiral's absence.

German Accuses Servant Of Murder Attempt

Buenos Aires, June 18.

Henry Jurgde, former secretary to the present Reich's Minister for Propaganda, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, told the police today that his countryman, Herr Otto Bummer, had attempted to poison him recently.

Otto Bummer was a servant in the boarding-house where Herr Jurgde was staying, and he is accused of having put some poison on the latter's plate in the course of a meal. The police are pursuing investigations into the matter and have discovered that Bummer boarded a German vessel, the General Artigas, yesterday afternoon to leave the country.—Havas.

New Mohammedan Chief

Hankow, June 19.

General Pai Chung-hsi, the Kwangsi leader and Chief of the General Staff of the Chinese Army, was today elected Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Chinese Mohammedans' Association.

Besides urging all Mohammedans in China to join in the resistance campaign against the Japanese, the Association has decided to send delegates to India, Egypt, Turkey and other Mohammedan countries to explain the stand of the Chinese Mohammedans.—Reuter.

Assassin Gangs Being Sought

"Ta Tao" Official and Singsong Girl Killed in Foochow Road Cafe

Squads of detectives from the Louza Station were yesterday following the trails of the members of the daring gang which assassinated Mr. Jen Pao-an, chief of the Land Office of the "Ta Tao" Government, and a beautiful singsong girl, Hsuang Hung, on Saturday night in the well-known Pekingese restaurant, Tung Hsing Lou, 435 Foochow Road. Two other Chinese were seriously wounded, and taken to hospital after the shooting. Three others again escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Jen was the host at a dinner party in the upstairs portion of the restaurant when three members of the gang walked in and started shooting at the guests with rapid-firing Mauser pistols. Some prominent Japanese guests had just left, but there were still two Japanese in the room, who however eluded the rain of bullets. The assassins escaped, leaving two pistols behind. Several persons were subsequently picked up by the police and questioned, but at a late hour yesterday it was not believed that any of the principals had been apprehended. The pistols found were examined by arms experts of the S.M.P. yesterday.

Another murderous attack of a political nature took place at House 51, Lane 410, Haiphong Road, said to be the residence of an official in the "Reformed Government" of Nanking Here three men entered on Saturday evening and one of them fired two or three shots at a man whom he took to be the official. Instead, it is understood, he wounded another Chinese, not politically important, in the leg. This gang likewise escaped.

President's Son is Married

Last of the Roosevelt Bachelors Weds

Nahant, Mass., June 18.

Mr. John Roosevelt, last bachelor son of the President, was married here today to Miss Anne Lindsay Clark, popular Boston debutante, in a simple twelve minute ceremony in the presence of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The groom spoke the wedding vows loudly, but the bride, misty-eyed, was barely audible. The couple did not kiss following the ceremony. Three hundred guests attended the ceremony in this quaint New England village. The President and his wife were in the first pew of the church during the ceremony. Only 5,000 persons waited outside the church to see the popular couple following their wedding.

Only 36 persons attended the wedding breakfast following the ceremony, but 800 persons were invited to a reception at the Nahant Club later in the day.

The young Mr. Roosevelt and his bride stole away from the reception to begin a secret honeymoon. Originally it had been announced they would make a brief tour of Europe, but it was believed they were going to the Roosevelt summer home at Campo Bello, New Brunswick. They were expected to sail for Canada aboard Mr. Richard Hart's yacht Vayou which was moored at the town landing here ready for a voyage.

The young Mr. Roosevelt will return to work with a Boston advertising agency following the couple's honeymoon. The young Roosevelts will live in Brookline, Mass.—United Press.

Nazi Film Matinee At Cathay Theatre

Big Audience Sees German Overseas League Film

Capacity attendance marked yesterday's matinee given at the Cathay Theatre, by the local group of the National Socialist party. The show was composed of three parts; the first, dedicated to German winter sports; the second, to life of German settlers and Nazi activity in Argentine; and the third, a film record of last year's big Nazi overseas league's rally at Stuttgart.

In contrast to other locally presented similar films, hardly any reference was made to the army or military activity. Life, education and pastimes of youth occupied the most prominent place, while labour and agricultural scenes were also conspicuous.

However, in the last part of the film, a strong military trend became obvious in the parade and meeting scenes with numerous political speeches. Photography and sound recording were below professional mark in the first two parts, but reach a vastly superior standard in the last part of the film.

Druggists Visit Troops

Fifty Japanese druggists, representing their profession, arrived in Shanghai Saturday by the N.Y.K. freighter Yamagata Maru to visit and cheer Japanese troops garrisoned in various parts of Central China, the Shanghai "Mainichi" said yesterday. Following their arrival, they called on various naval, military and consular establishments to donate cases containing first-air relief medicines.

LIKE his famous grandfather, the new Duke of Devonshire has always been inclined to take an independent line in politics. He describes himself as a Unionist rather than as a Conservative, and on at least two occasions he has expressed strong opposition to his leaders. Slightly built, he is somewhat solemn in manner, and possesses the family characteristic of a heavy lower lip—"the Cavendish lip," as it is called. It is, however, less prominent in him than it was in his father. By his marriage to the Marquis of Salisbury's daughter he united two of the most wealthy and politically prominent families in the country. It was of his grandfather that some malicious wit invented the story that he dreamed he was speaking in the House of Lords, and when he woke he found he really was addressing that assembly.

Alleged Chinese Spies Arrested

Sentry's Alertness Leads To Round-Up of 16

Because of Private Tadao Osawa's intuition, 16 of a band of 21 alleged Chinese spies are now awaiting court-martial in Hsuchow, the Shanghai "Nippo" reported yesterday. The agents were attached to an organization directed by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, one time "Christian General."

Private Osawa, on sentry duty in the northern outskirts of Hsuchow on May 31, suspected something was amiss when a Chinese carrying what seemed to be a forged military pass sought to enter the town in company with a group of farmers. The suspect's appearance also set him apart from his companions, the daily quoted an unnamed traveller who recently returned from the Tsinpu-Lunghai junction as spying.

Taken to military headquarters, the suspect, broke down under examination and is alleged to have admitted he was Shih Chuan-chen, 26-year-old chief of the Second Section of Marshal Feng's secret service. On the basis of information supplied by Shih, Japanese military police raided Wang-chiatien, a village outside Hsuchow on June 3, arresting 16 suspects.

Following the example set by their alleged leader, who frequently disports coolie attire, the "agents" were said to have gone about looking like labourers. Besides espionage activities, they are charged with having directed the operations of Chinese stragglers organized in raiding bands.

Large Reception Held For Sergt. G. T. Allen

Popular Member of S.M.P. Leaving After 12 Years

More than seventy of his comrades bade farewell on Saturday evening to Sergeant George T. Allen, who left the Shanghai Municipal Police on Friday after twelve years' service to return to England and engage in the dairy business. A farewell reception was held in the badminton grounds of the West Hongkew Police Station, Haining Road. The large attendance representing Police Headquarters and all Stations, attested the great popularity of the departing police officer.

A triple presentation was made to Sergeant Allen on behalf of the foreign and Chinese personnel of the Police. Inspector W. H. Pike, attached to the Legal Department of the S.M.C., spoke for the gathering, referring to Sergeant Allen's career and service in two local "troubles" and wishing him health and prosperity at Home. A toast was drunk by all those present. Cold supper was served in the course of the evening.

The gifts were a seven-storey silver pagoda on a base adorned with the Municipal crest, a large silver cigarette box likewise bearing the Council's coat-of-arms, and a handsome silver Buddha.

Sergeant Allen expects to leave Shanghai at the end of this month by steamer for America. He will motor across the United States and then proceed by ship to England. He intends to settle at his home town, Billericay, Essex, where he will join his father as a dairyman.

President Does Not Seek Third Term

Jaspar, Ala., June 18.

Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, said today he did not believe President Roosevelt would seek a third term in 1940.

"From all I have seen and heard, in my judgment President Roosevelt will not seek the Democratic nomination again," Mr. Bankhead said. "I don't think he wants a third term."

The senior Alabama Senator, at his Jaspar home for a long rest declined to predict who would be the Democratic nominee in the 1940 contest.—United Press.

At Fourteen Languid, Pale And Thin.

At Sixteen Full Of Life And Spirits.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Made All The Difference In This Young English Girl. If You Have An Ailing Daughter Let Them Do The Same For Her.

Listless, always tired, backward at school, lacking interest in games, peevish, pale and thin, life is an unhappiness instead of a joy to many girls and boys. All the time, too, they are gradually slipping more deeply into a condition of constitutional weakness which may affect them all through life.

Such was the case of Mary Toyne, and with a desire to be helpful to other parents, this young girl's mother, Mrs. A. Toyne, of 115 East Avenue, South Elmsall, Yorks, England, recently related the following facts of her case.

"Soon after reaching the age of fourteen my daughter became languid, pale and thin", states Mrs. Toyne. "It worried me terribly to see her so rundown, losing all her colour, with no appetite and continually depressed. Mary was also attacked by gastric trouble which caused her much pain. For nearly two years she was in this weak, anaemic state and nothing seemed to do her any good until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Then Mary soon began to pick up; her appetite improved, the colour returned to her cheeks and she began to fill out again. The stomach trouble vanished and now at sixteen Mary is a bonny girl, full of life and high spirits."

The case of Mary Toyne is but one of thousands in which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved all that was necessary to change the course of a life from ill-health and gloom to health and a rosy future. So if your daughter or your son is anaemic, lacking in vitality, a victim to digestive troubles, general weakness, or any ailment due to impoverished blood or debilitated nerves, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you surely will never regret it.

Equally good also for adults of both sexes, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are obtainable from chemists everywhere.

Alleged Plot Against Chinese Leaders

Three Suspects Arrested In Hankow

Hankow, June 19.

Three persons were arrested here today for allegedly participating in a plot to threaten the lives of prominent Chinese leaders and businessmen, including Mr. Chu Chia-hua, Secretary-General of the Central Kuomintang and President of the Chinese League of Nations Union.

One of the trio is alleged to have organized the "Righteousness Assassination Corps" in Hankow for the purpose of extorting money.

All three were arrested in a local hotel by the garrison authorities, who are investigating whether they belong to an extortion gang or to a Japanese espionage ring.—Reuter.

Japanese Seek More Relief Funds

Tsingtao Getting Double Amount of Shanghai

For the second time in a week, Japanese residents gathered at the Japanese Club, Boone Road, on Saturday to discuss plans for a campaign to secure a larger allotment of Government rehabilitation funds, in the form of low-interest loans, the Shanghai "Nippo" reported yesterday.

Charging partiality in the disposal of the funds, disgruntled elements in the local community pointed out that while Tsingtao Japanese were getting Y10,000,000, only Y4,500,000 had been earmarked for distribution in Shanghai, the daily said. The conference was attended by representatives of the Federation of Amalgamated Japanese Street Unions, the Industrial Association, and other local groups.

Stating that their Chinese trade connections had been destroyed by the current hostilities, a number of those attending the conference insisted that large loans would be necessary for their rehabilitation. Another meeting will be held on June 23.

In the Russian Colony

By "Siboy"

The arctic, antarctic and tropical adventures of explorers form a subject of inexhaustible interest. Yet while the world has read much of non-Russian explorers, it knows practically nothing of Russian ones. Scott, Amundsen, Shackleton, Sven Hedin, Admiral Byrd and Sir Hubert Wilkins occupy their niche in every geography school-book, but only since the names of Otto Schmidt, Ivan Papanin and other members of the Soviet North Pole Expedition were flashed across the world's headlines last year, did the world begin to link Russian names with exploration.

Long before this achievement of the Soviets, however, Russia knew the names of such outstanding explores as Admiral Kruzenstern, Admiral Nevelskoy (the 80th anniversary of whose death occurred recently), Peter P. Semeneff, given the title of "Tien-Shansky" for his discoveries in the Tien-Shan range near the Himalayas, Col. V. P. Kozloff, who excavated an ancient city buried beneath the sands of Mongolia, Prof. V. V. Sapojnikoff, who explored and charted the Altai Mountains, and G. N. Potanin, his famous teacher. Admiral A. V. Kolchak, well-known for his political activities during the Civil War, was likewise a heroic explorer. In 1903 he set out in a small boat in search of the lost polar expedition of Baron Tohl ice-bound somewhere in the Arctic Ocean.

Hunters Use Fire

Another explorer, whose book of memoirs has just been republished in Soviet Russia, was Prjevalsky, who started on the first of his two famous trips in 1867, exploring the Ussurivsky region, the southern part of the Maritime provinces that had recently been annexed to Russia. The rich flora and fauna of this belt where the south met the north seemed to have stirred the imagination of the explorer. Certainly there is a strain of poetry running throughout his accounts of hunting in the almost impenetrable forests abounding with bear, sable and tiger, of fishing in the Hanka lake so teeming with fish that they were killed by a ship's wheels and often jumped on to its very deck, and even of the insects near the Sungacha river that were so plentiful that "in walking through a field they swarm about the feet in clouds that can be compared only to a swirling snow-storm." In summer tall grass overgrew the plains and fields, and to facilitate hunting the natives set fire to the limitless sea of dry grass. The mighty fire spread with terrific speed, and the awesome picture of hundreds of animals and birds fleeing before the columns of smoke is, once seen, says Prjevalsky, forever inscribed in the memory.

The first time he saw this sight was on his way to Vladivostok, then a newly established Russian town of soldiers' barracks, five foreign houses, approximately ten Chinese huts and a number of stores where goods of the most inferior quality shipped from Shanghai and Hamburg were sold to the Chinese at outrageous prices by four astute foreign merchants.

The native population of the Ussursky region was composed of Chinese, the "Goldi," a tribe of hunters and fishermen, Koreans, and the "Orochi"—a primitive tribe of nomad huntsmen in the evolutionary stage of savages. There were also 5,000 Cossacks who lived in little military villages, or "stanitzas," situated 10 to 25 versts from one another and forming the outposts of Russia. They were sent here from the Transbaikalia by lot, and regarded their new neighbours as enemies and themselves as exiles.

Accompanied by his young companion Nicolai Yaginoff and two or three Cossacks, Prjevalsky travelled by water, on horseback, or, along narrow perilous trails, by foot. He slept on the snow, with a log fire the only proof against a cold that made it impossible to touch anything made of metal, and, again, in a climate that vied with the tropics.

In New Guinea

No account of the exploits of Russian explorers would, of course, be complete without a mention of N. N. Miklukha-Maclay, the man who wanted to present Russia with New Guinea. In 1866 he visited the Madeira Island, the Canary Islands and Morocco. In 1869 he traversed the shores of the Red Sea and made a scientific tour of the Near East. In 1871 he visited Patagonia, Chihli and several islands of Oceania on the naval brig "Vitiaz," and in the September of the same year demanded that he be left, with only the bare necessities of life and his two servants—a Polynesian and a Swede—in the Bay of Astroliabia, a particularly wild corner of New Guinea. In spite of the dissuasions of the captain and the crew, Miklukha-Maclay was adamant in his wish, and it was finally decided that in a year's time another ship would be sent to take him back. It was the general opinion, however, shared by the Imperial Geographic Society in Petersbourgh—that with the savages that were known to inhabit newly-discovered New Guinea, in a year's time there would not be much left of him or his servants to take back.

Miklukha-Maclay's account of his life among the aborigines makes thrilling reading. Time and again he barely escaped death from poisoned arrows, and once was seriously down with fever. Finally, however, the natives decided that "the man from the moon," as he was to them, was harmless enough, and friendly relations ensued. He was able to carry out all his scientific and ethnological observations, and when the "Izumrud" sailed despondently into harbour next year, ready to search for his remains, he was found occupying the office of "moon-god" in the natives' inter-tribal wars.

In the following years Miklukha-Maclay made many other trips, often visiting territory completely unknown to the natives themselves. After his death his works—76 in number—were translated into English, German and Dutch.

Combatting Illiteracy

Methods of combatting illiteracy among local Russian youth were discussed at a meeting of Russian-language teachers in the premises of the Russian Women's League on Thursday, June 9. It was decided that the various local Russian schools will be asked to include grammar-courses in all classes, even the highest. The walls of classrooms should, it was further resolved, be hung with charts and pictures of educational value. As there is a dearth of good reading material in the local Russian book-market, a member of the Teachers' Union leaving for Harbin was asked to see into the possibilities of books being purchased in that city. The next meeting was set for not later than September 2nd. In spite of the fact that this Union is of fairly short standing, having so far met for only six times, a study, by specialists, of such questions as the fight against illiteracy, the improvement of the standard of writing, and the using of education to forestall de-nationalization of Russian youth, has already had beneficial effects.

Lovers of the Ukaranian Theatre were given a rare treat when Gogol's "Viy" was produced at the Hall of the College Municipal Français last week. The size of the audience, the hearty laughs which followed each comic situation, and the applause after the vocal numbers all testified to the success the Ukrainian actors enjoyed. Of these the principals were Miss L. Kisilieva, Mr. L. Gaidarov and Mr. V. Dubrovsky. Enhancing the effectiveness of the presentation was the excellent chorus and the accompanying symphonic orchestra conducted by Mr. D. Zaks.

A troupe of local actors and actresses at present in Harbin are piling success upon success, Harbin newspapers and letters received from that city state unanimously. Especially have Harbin audiences been won over by the talented actress Miss V. V. Panova. The troupe, headed by Mr. V. I. Tomsky, has so far given four performances, taking in the sum of $3000.

Russians in India

The Russian colony also watches with interest the fortunes of members of local Bohemian circles in India. After an absence of six months, Miss L. Nikitina and Mr. N. Svetlanov, popular ballet-dancers, have returned here from India and tell of their meetings with Russian Shanghailanders in that country. In Colombo the artist A. Safronoff is painting the murals of the Halifax Hotel." His work is highly valued, and he finds time to do a considerable amount of painting on Indian themes. In Colombo, also, the dancers met the well-known impressario M. A. Karpi, where he is managing the Viennese orchestra of Gabor Radic. In Madras they met the ballet-duo of Fokin and Kravhenko, who, however, shortly left for Calcutta. In Bombay they came across the ballet-duo of Vladimir and Nina Artinelli, who were touring the summer resorts. While in Singapore, they spent much time with the artist V. Zasypkin, who has his studio and pupils and is the centre of the artistical life of that city. Connoisseurs are showing inerest over his work, and there is a chance that he will leave for England. The young Shanghai artist Mr. V. Tretchikoff is also in Singapore, working in a British advertising firm. The famous ballet-dancers Kira and Boris Lisanevitch are apparently staying permanently in Calcutta, where Boris is the secretary of the fashionable "Three Hundred Club." "Musicians," says Mr. Svetlanov, "have little difficulty in finding work in India. They are valued highly." As regards themselves, Miss Nikitina and Mr. Svetlanov have little to say. That, however, is done amply by cuttings from Indian papers which tell of their highly successful tour of the principal cities of India.

An interesting meeting of the Russian Medical Society was held in the premises of the Russian Confraternity Hospital on Friday, June 17. Dr. I. E. Rozenzweig demonstrated X-ray pictures of a man sick of Caudia equina and Conus medullaris, and of one afflicted with several intestinal diseases. Dr. A. V. Tarle then talked of the latest progress in the field of chemical terapathy.

Community Gossip

Mrs. Z. M. Markhinina Secretary of the Executive Committee of the Russian Women's League, is shortly leaving for Australia. A meeting devoted to her was held at the League premises recently, in the course of which a short play written for the occasion by Miss Fuller, the English teacher of the League's school, was staged. Dances produced by Mrs. O. N. Malinina also formed part of the programme, which culminated in tea being served to all present and a valuable token of gratitude being presented to Mrs. Markhinina by the League's Chairman, Mrs. E. L. Unterberger.

A requiem service in memory of Khoren I, the recently-deceased Kalikatos of all Armenians, was held in the Russian Cathedral last week. Many followers of the Armenian-Georgian faith were present at this service, being met at the church portals by Mr. M. G. Melik-Nubarov, one of the leaders of the local Armenian colony.

Mr. N. N. Iazikoff, a well-known journalist, left recently for permanent residence in the United States. Mr. Iazikoff arrived here from Serbia over six years ago, and since then has worked on various Russian newspapers.

Last week's meeting of the literary club "Monday" was something of a gala affair, being attended by various representatives of the colony's Bohemian circles. During the meeting a letter received from Prague was read out to the audience, asking the local club to collect material dealing with the life of Russian emigration in the Far East, and to send it to the Russian Cultural and Historical Museum in Prague.

Mr. V. N. Kostevitch, a young Russian pianist who for the last seven years, has lived in Italy, has recently arrived in Shanghai and tells of the life of Russian emigrants in that country. Small Russian colonies exist in Milan and other principal Italian cities, states Mr. Kostevitch, composed chiefly of men and women who arrived in Italy ten or twelve years ago and who by now have opened little commercial concerns of their own. The centre of Russian emigration in Italy is the Russian Orthodox Church in Milan, with which is associated both cultural and charitable work. A major care of Russian emigrants in Italy is to conserve the national spirit in their children. The principal difficulty in this respect lies in the absence of Russian schools. Extremely friendly relations exist between the Russian colonies and Italians. The latter, a musial nation, are especially fond of Russian music, a fact evidenced by the invariable inclusion of at least two Russian operas in every repertoire of the famous La Scala Opera House of Milan.

The forthcoming lengthy tour to foreign countries by King Zogu of Albania and his young wife Queen Geraldine is announced in Budapest by the press. Although the itinerary has not yet been published, it is known that they will visit Hungary.

The Swiss Federal Council has approved by a vote of 115 to 47 the introduction of a defence tax, the proceeds to be used for redeeming loans incurred for purposes of developing national defence. The tax may be levied on property or income or both and war profits are also liable to taxation.

Oil concerns have decided to establish a new pipe-line across Palestine, this line to be under ground. The precautionary measure of laying the pipes out of sight is taken with a view to hiding them from terrorists, who have recently broken above-surface lines.

The Asiastic explorer and winner of the National Socialist Culture Prize in 1937, Herr Wilhelm Filchner, was awarded the honorary doctor's degree by the Technical Academy of Munich on Friday. In his address, Dr. Filchner stated that thanks to the generous assistance by the German Chancellor he will set out on a new expedition in the near future.

The Prince-Bishop of Salzburg, Dr. Sigismund Waitz, contributed an article to the latest issue of the Catholic magazine, "Schoenere Zukunft," ("Better Future") in which he violently criticizes the attitude of a certain section of the foreign and above all the French press which severely censured the Austrian Episcopate for issuing a proclamation welcoming the anschluss in March.

The Bureau of Foreign Trade of the Ministry of Economics has decided to open an office in Hongkong for pushing China's export trade, says a message to the "Sin Wan Pao.'" The Hongkong office of the Bureau, it is reported, will devote special attention to the exportation of Keemun and Lianghu tea, tung oil from the upper Yangtze River valley, antimony from Hunan and silk from Kwangtung.

The Kwangtung provincial authorities have taken effective measures to uphold the legal value of the Chinese national currency, states a dispatch to the "Sin Wan Pao." One of these measures, it is stated, requires the use of national currency as the basis of conversion between the local Cantonese and Hongkong bank notes. The issue of legal tender notes in Kwangtung by Government banks now totals $276,609,699.50.

Forgotten anniversaries connect 1882 and 1938; for it was on May 6, 1882, that Lord Frederick Cavendish, whose nephew, the Duke of Devonshire, has just died, and Mr. Thomas Henry Burke were murdered in the Phoenix Park, Dublin, after the former had been sworn in as Chief Secretary for Ireland. The 1938 date coincides with the passing of the Anglo-Irish Treaty in the House of Commons and in the Dail, and will probably be momentous in Irish history.

The water level of the Chientang River has registered a sharp rise as a result of the heavy rain in East Chekiang during the past few days, says a message to the "Morning Leader." The heavy wash of the river, it is reported, has caused the capsizing of a number of Japanese steam launches moored in the vicinity of Liuhota near Hangchow. The rainfall has also brought about a cessation of hostilities at points north and south of the Chientang River, concludes the message.

The new president of the Insurance Institute of London, Mr. A. S. Rogers, comes of a long race of distinguished Nonconformist preachers. His grandfather, Dr. Guinness Rogers, himself the son of an Irish minister, was a close friend of Gladstone, and died in 1911 at the age of 89. His father, the Rev. Stanley Rogers, was for half a century one of the leading preachers in Liverpool, and is still hale and hearty in his retirement at West Kirby. A brother carries on the family tradition at a South London church.

One of the finest political satirists of his time has passed away in the person of Mr. Ian D. Colvin. Both wit and pungency characterized most of what he wrote, but it never left any acrimony behind. A good example of his style occurred during the crisis of 1931 when the late Mr. Arthur Henderson had been pleading that the credit of Britain should be pledged to get us out of our financial difficulties. "Now we know why he is called Uncle Arthur" was Mr. Colvin's witty comment in a leading article. It greatly amused Mr. Henderson himself.

Mr. Harry de Vere Clifton, who does not consider he should have lost £30,000 in 15 minutes while playing poker in California, is son of the unusual man about whom his widow wrote "The Book of Talbot." Mr. John Talbot Clifton travelled in many uncomfortable parts of the world, although he was a man of great wealth. He made various discoveries—an important new route in Africa, the River Lena in Siberia, and a new species of wild sheep in the Arctic Ocean. Some of the broad Clifton acres in Lancashire come from grants made by William Rufus. Most of the money is derived from Blackpool.

200,000 Attend Rice Bowl Parties

San Francisco, June 18.

Two hundred thousand Americans packed Chinatown here tonight for "Rice Bowl Parties" sponsored by American relief organizations to raise funds for civilian refugees in war-torn China.

Several tourists missed outgoing ships because of the traffic jam in Chinatown during the tumultuous rice bowl celebration.—United Press.

Czech National Fund

Prague, June 18.

Within one week, the proceeds of public subscriptions to the National Defence Fund have mounted up to 300,000,000 crowns, it is reported locally today. President Eduard Benes heads the list of subscribers with a donation of 100,000 crowns, while the Ministers of the land have contributed 200,000 crowns.—Havas.

The Kiangsi Provincial Government has allotted a sum of $700,000 for flood prevention and conservancy work in the province, says a dispatch to the "Morning Leader." This fund, according to the dispatch, will be spent chiefly on the strengthening of the several hundred dykes and dams along Kiangsi rivers, which are generally very hard pressed during the flood season every year. Meanwhile, the weather in Nanchang, the capital city of Kiangsi, cleared up on Friday, following incessant rains for several days. Flood waters in low parts of the city are now steadily receding, and motor traffic on several provincial highways, which was suspended for some time, has been resumed.

Kiangyin Shows Signs Of Recovery

Quarter of Population Back In Town

With 13,000 people, representing one-fourth of its pre-hostility population, within its ancient walls, Kiangyin, once prosperous Yangtze city 40 kilometres north of Wusih, is showing signs of revival, the Shanghai "Nippo" reported yesterday.

Six-tenths of the city was laid waste by shelling and fire last year, but rehabilitation work is going apace under the direction of an Autonomous Commission formed on February 5.

Always a distribution centre for agricultural products, the town will assume a greater importance in the revival of the Lower Yangtze when projected harbour improvements are completed, the "Nippo" pointed out. Two cotton mills, which escaped destruction, are also located in the city. One is equipped with 40,000 spindles, the other with 13,000 spindles.

Racketeer Sentenced

New York, June 18.

Jacob Shapiro, known as "gurrah" to his associates in New York's $75,000,000 a year fur dressing industry and described by the Department of Justice as "the most ferocious killer" in this city, was sentenced last night to three years in the penitentary and a fine of $15,000.

He was convicted in the court of Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz of having caused "a reign of terror" in the city fur dressing centres in violation of the anti-Trust Law.—United Press.

Australians' Splendid Start

Tourists Score 262 for Five Wickets Against Lancashire, County Cricket Leaders

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 18.

WITH Badcock contributing 96 and Hassett 118, the Australians made a splendid start today in their match against Lancashire, the present leaders in the County Championship, at Manchester. The tourists had made 262 for the loss of five wickets when stumps were drawn. Badcock reached his 1,000 runs for the season today in compiling his 96. Don Bradman failed to display his usual form, and was dismissed after making 12.

Yorkshire, strong contenders for the top position, batted all day against Surrey at Sheffield to score 416, of which Barber was responsible for 157 and Smailes 116.

Middlesex, another leading county, did not fare too well at Chelmsford, where Essex knocked up 300 and then dismissed four Middlesex batsmen for 108.

Detailed scores:

At Manchester—Australians 262 for five (Badcock 96, Hassett 118 not out, Bradman 12) against Lancashire.
At Worthing—Worcester 168. Sussex 214 for seven.
At Chelmsford—Essex 300. Middlesex 108 for four.
At Leicester—Hampshire 338 for seven (Holt 116, Pothecary 100) against Leicester.
At Swansea—Glamorgan 388 (Dyson 117) against Cambridge.
At Nottingham—Kent 270 for seven against Notts.
At Burton-on-Trent—Gloucester 238 for seven (Hammond 110).
At Lord's—M.C.C. 337. Oxford 16 without loss.
At Sheffield—Yorkshire 316 (Barber 157, Smailes 116) against Surrey.
At Birmingham—Warwick 184. Northants four without loss.—Reuter.

Long Yacht Race Won by Rover

Ingomar Leads Over the Course; Loses Through Handicaps

Yachtsmen were not to be deterred by yesterday's threatening weather outlook early in the morning and six of the miscellaneous class completed the first leg of the Challenge Cup over a long course of some 30 miles length, starting from the headquarters at Yangtszepoo and sailing out to Quarantine Buoy, three miles outside Woosung to return in the afternoon.

Rover sailed by H. G. Fabian won the race—and the first leg on the Challenge Cup, finishing up second to Ingomar on both the outward and return journeys, and displacing the latter yacht of her pride of place by handicap allowances. Ingomar actually finished well ahead of her rival, but could not save her time allowance and dropped back to third place on corrected times. Spook sailed by W. J. Richmond took second place on corrected times and Ingomar was skippered by C. B. Blaikie.

Whereas the entry of six yachts was a fairly enthusiastic response to the "A" class race, only four of the 14 "C" class yachts turned out for their informal racing and this was confined to events during the morning wherein K. F. Piper on Sun Lee won one.

The Challenge Cup is sailed for in a series of three legs, a total of points gained in the three deciding the disposal of this—one of the oldest trophies in the Club. Yesterday's was the first leg, and the six yachts were sent off from Kwangshin Road Jetty with Ingomar and Viking going out ahead of their rivals, followed by Ella, Rover, Spook and Mignon in this order.

Rivals Outstripped

Ingomar soon established a good lead, the north easterly wind giving it a windward start and in the beat downriver she was soon able to outstrip her rivals. Viking followed and Rover came up to displace Ella for third place. The wind was very light and after rounding the Point, Ingomar was seen to go out to a grand lead, her windward qualities showing up.

Rover came up to displace Viking in second place by standing through on a long leg on the starboard tack, and the latter, blanketed by the ships anchored off the Point Island was caught by Ella and Spook, these three being close together for practically all the outward race, while Mignon was badly left and never entered the picture.

It was a long reach, which most yachts made in one leg to the Kiaojao corner and from here sheets were eased and balloon jibs and eventually spinnakers set for the run down the Astrea channel.

Monotonous Drifting

The wind died completely in parts of this channel and it was a monotonous drifting match until Pheasant Point was reached. From here a wind came up and Ingomar was able to make the best of it, running away from her rivals, and by the time Rover reached Woosung, Ingomar was standing out well to Quarantine buoy. The bend in the river at Woosung necessitated a beat to Lismore, and once outside the breakwater it was a long reach to Quarantine. All yachts stood up high to be sure not to be set down by the tide too much, and all had eventually to go about to get down to the mark. Ingomar rounded some 20 minutes ahead of Rover and after struggling against the ebb to round the mark to port veered over towards the Pootung shore for the slacker water. She set a parachute spinnaker and made the run in in good time. Rover coming up second to the Quarantine mark stood over well into the Pootung shore and not till she was well out of the ebb tideway did she stand up for Lismore which had to be taken to port on return. By this she made up some three odd minutes, whereas Viking and Spook on their return stood straight upriver for Lismore and must have had better wind and a slacker tide—the last of the ebb was just about finished—as they drew up. The first half of the race was completed at the Conservancy Pipeline at Woosung and Ingomar took the times which were: Ingomar 3.36.00; Rover 3.53.20; Shook 4.00.30; Viking 4.02.06; Ella 4.06.30; Mignon 4.08.37.

Return Race

The return race took place in the afternoon and although Ingomar got the best start, she was down to leeward and Rover up to wind secured the best position. She led the others to the new cut at Pheasant Point and four out of the six braved the possibility of going ashore here. Ingomar coming through Rover's wind, and claiming "water" went into the lead which she never relinquished and Rover held second place with Spook and Mignon coming up well. On the Astrea channel, the wind increased to a fair breeze and the rain caused crews to don oilskins. The wind had changed direction to almost easterly, and it was a long reach close hauled up the channel, Ingomar holding her long lead when reaching Kiaojao, Rover being second and Mignon displacing Spook of third place for the time being. At Kiaojao the rain almost ceased and the wind dropped to but a mere breeze with the result that Ingomar could make no further impression on Rover and actually lost some of the advantage she had made earlier. Spook came up to pass Mignon and held third place, the others following in a procession. Times for the second half of the race were: Ingomar 1.40.00; Rover 1.47.18; Spook 1.51.24; Mignon 1.54.53; Ella 1.56.57; Viking 2.02.53.

Corrected Times

The following were the total and corrected times:

Wimbledon Tennis to Commence Today

Budge Raging Favourite; Mrs. Moody Fancied

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 19.

The Wimbledon championships, which start tomorrow, are likely once again to be favoured with glorious weather.

The famous meeting this year lacks colourful players like Fred Perry, Baron von Cramm, Bill Tilden and Henri Cochet. Nevertheless, the usual thousands of spectators are expected to be present.

If colourful men players are lacking, there is strong female talent, and this year it is being called "Women's Wimbledon."

Both the men and women singles titles are expected to go to America.

Budge Hot Favourite

Donald Budge, the American ace, is a raging favourite to retain his title. He is at present unbackable at odds of 5-1 on.

H. W. Austin, the British number one, who displayed great form in defeating Kho Sin-kie in the final of the London championship, is second favourite—a 6-1 chance—while Roderick Menzel, the Czech champion, is a 7-1 bet.

Keen competition is expected in the women's section between Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who is making a bid for her eighth Wimbledon singles title, and Miss Alice Marble, but many will be supporting last year's finalist, Mlle. Jedzrejowska, of Poland.

The odds on these three players are: 5-2 against Mrs. Moody; 3-1 against Miss Marble; 5-1 against Mlle. Jedzrejowska.

If Mrs. Moody succeeds in capturing the title again, she will have established an all-time new record in winning the title eight times. At present she is tied with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen with seven victories each.—Reuter.

Mrs. Moody a Question Mark

London, June 18.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, one-time "Queen of Tennis," today was a 2-to-1 favourite to win the Wimbledon women's singles title.

Last night she was only a co-favourite with Miss Alice Marble at 3-to-1 odds, but there was a tremendous influx of Moody money overnight.

Sports writers regarded the American ace a great question mark, despite the odds in her favour, pointing out new weaknesses noticed in her play this season. Her performances thus far have indicated she is no longer the queen of the courts. Her placings have lost some of their old accuracy and she appears to make more mistakes in her footwork than formerly. She also is not as fast as the Helen Wills who for years was in a class of her own.

Other odds on leading favourites quoted today included:

Helen Jacobs, United States	10-1
Nancey Wynne, Australia	10-1
Mrs. Sarah Fabyan, United States	10-1
Margaret Scriven, Britain	10-1
Mrs. Simone Mathieu, France	10-1

Don Budge, world's number one tennis player, was the hottest favourite in history of the Wimbledon championships. The American was placed on the long end of 5-to-1 odds to retain the British title.—United Press.

Brazil Appeal Rejected

Paris, June 19.

The board of the International Football Federation sitting in Paris has rejected the appeal made by the manager of the Brazilian national football team against the decision of the Swiss referee Wuethrich on a penalty claim in the match in which Brazil lost to Italy by 2-1.—Trans-Ocean.

Wins London Tennis Championship

Mlle. Jedzrejowska, of Poland, on Saturday won the final of the women's singles in the London Tennis Championships by overcoming Mrs. Sperling of Denmark by the convincing score of 6-3, 6-0. Mrs. Sperling had beaten Helen Wills Moody in the semi-finals while Mrs. Jedzrejowska had disposed of Mrs. Fabyan. The new title-holder is 26 years of age, 5 ft. 3 in. tall and said to be "strong as a horse." She plays with man-sized power having a terrific service and forehand drive.

Alliss Wins Pro Golf Tourney

Whitcombe, Gadd Tie for Second Place Honours at Sandy Lodge

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 19.

Gaining a half in the last match while Reginald Whitcombe, the leader, was being beaten, Percy Alliss, who has represented Great Britain in Ryder Cup contests many times, won the professional league golf tournament at Sandy Lodge today.

Of the 11 matches which each competitor had to play, Alliss won seven and halved two, giving him a total of 16 points.

Bert Gadd and Reginald Whitcombe, who led alternately during the tournament, tied for second place with 15 points each, while Henry Cotton, the British Open champion, was joint third with Lacey and Burton with 12 points each.

The results of the 11th and last series were:

Cotton beat Reginald Whitcombe by 2 up;
Mitchell beat Charles Whitcombe by 4 and 2;
Lacey beat King by one up,
Burton and Gadd halved;
Alliss and Mahon halved;
Branch beat Padgham by 2 and 1.

The final standings of competitors are:

Final Standings

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Alliss	11	7	2	2	16
R. A. Whitcombe	11	7	3	1	15

Steele to Risk Title

Seattle, June 18.

Freddie Steele, world's middleweight champion, will meet Al Hostak of Seattle in an outdoor title match here on June 26, it was announced today.

Fight followers from all parts of the state are expected to crowd into Seattle to see the state's two leading middleweights clash for the world's number one position. Hostak rates fourth among world middleweights.—United Press.

Brazil Not to Leave Football Federation

Bordeaux, June 19.

The manager of the Brazilian national football team which was eliminated from the world football cup contest by Italy, has issued a denial of the report that he had cabled to Rio de Janeiro asking for the withdrawal of Brazil from the International Football Federation. The world football cup final will be fought out today in Paris between Italy and Hungary.—Trans-Ocean.

New Track Record Made in U.S.

Princeton, N.J., June 19.

Wayne Rideout of Texas set a new world record in the three-quarter mile run today in the course of competition in the annual inter-collegiate meet, his time was 3 minutes 0.3 seconds.—Havas.

Babe Ruth Returning To Baseball

Will Coach the Dodgers At $15,000 a Year

New York, June 18.

Babe Ruth, the most colorful figure in the history of baseball, is coming back into the game of which he is so vital a part after an absence of three years spent chiefly in playing golf and granting interviews.

The Bambino has been contracted by the Brooklyn Dodgers as coach, it was announced today, with a reported salary of U.S. $15,000 a year.

The Babe will join the Dodgers immediately, it was stated, and would serve in the capacity of coach for the rest of the season.

Although entire details of the move were not released to the public, most sports writers here were of the opinion that Ruth is headed for a job as manager of the Dodgers next season. This would replace Burleigh Grimes, who has been the constant target of attacks by fans, sports writers and members of the Brooklyn team itself since the beginning of the season for his heavy-handed method of dealing with players.—United Press.

Huge Ticket Sale for Louis-Schmeling Bout

Drums of Publicity Now Beating Loudly

New York, June 18.

With the date of the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling battle for the world heavyweight championship drawing closer, the drums of publicity building the clash as the "Battle of the Century" have started to beat louder and wilder.

Every possible angle has been covered by sports scribes. The principal fights of each battler have been reviewed on countless occasions. Every known anecdote regarding them has been told and every plausible publicity "gag" has been uncorked by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club in an effort to create even more interest and drag in the first million-dollar gate since the Dempsey-Tunney battles.

Ballyhoo Thick

The ballyhoo has been spread on thick and the selling of tickets has been increasing at a fast clip, passing the U.S.$750,000 mark, according to Mike Jacobs, promoter of the clash.

Jacobs revealed that five weeks ago more than U.S.$150,000 had been collected in cash orders for tickets.

The guiding genius of the Twentieth Century interests opened his reservation books and exposed the names of his customers with the amount of tickets each has paid for. The orders represent a wide cross section of business and professional life, as well as indicating a national turnout.

One of the big individual orders was that of the Oldsmobile Auto Corp., which bought U.S.$5,400 worth. The Steiner Brewery purchased U.S.$1,650 worth. Buick Motors took 300 tickets and Edward Flynn, Secretary of the State of New York, bought 125.

Huge Ticket Purchases

Other prominent purchasers include A. Annenberg, Philadelphia newspaper executive; Hyman Bushel, attorney; Thomas L. Chadboune, J. J. Dillon, Big Bill Edwards, Bernard Gimbel, Harry Grabiner, of the White Sox; Bronx Borough President James Lyons, C. H. Hayward, M. B. Hall, bank executive; William Fox, the movie man; Colonel Greenhut, William F. Carey, Sanitation Commissioner, who is taking 400, and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, of the Yankees. Madison Square Garden Corp. is taking a bloc of 2,000.—United Press.

Revenge Gained by "Bunny" Austin

Kho Brushed Aside With Ease; Mlle. Jedzrejowska Wins Women's Title

London, June 18.

H. W. Austin, the British ace, avenged his previous defeat at the hands of Kho Sin-kie today when he scored a convincing victory over the Chinese champion in the final of the London championship.

The Briton, who was at his best, made short work of Kho, winning by 6/2, 6/0.

The Chinese was completely outclassed and never had a chance. Before the match, Kho was a 10-1 chance in the betting for the Wimbledon title.

In the previous meeting, in the final of the British Hard Court Championship, Kho beat Austin by 6/4, 6/4, 3/6, 6/3.

Women's Final

The women's title went to the Polish champion, Mlle. Jedzrejowska, who defeated Mrs. Sperling, of Denmark, the conqueror of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, by 6/3, 6/0.

In the Men's doubles the British couple, G. P. Hughes and Wilde, took the measures of Gene Mako (America) and Kukuljevic (Yugoslavia) by 6/8, 6/0, 6/2.

Mrs. Miller and Miss Morphew, of South Africa, won the Women's Doubles, overcoming Mlle. Jedzrejowska and Miss Thomas by 4/6, 6/0, 6/0.—Reuter.

Farr Meets Strickland This Summer

Title Fight to Be Over Fifteen Rounds

London, June 18.

Tommy Farr, the British and Empire heavyweight champion, is to defend his Empire title against Maurice Strickland either in the last week of July or the first week of August.

Both men have agreed to the terms offered them by W. J. Galbraith, a Toronto promoter, and the fight has been tentatively fixed for the time stated above.

The contest will be over fifteen rounds and will take place at Toronto at a time when Canadian ex-soldiers will be holding a convention there. It will be the first Empire heavyweight championship ever held in Canada.

The terms include a guarantee of $25,000 (£5,000) for Farr, and $10,000 (£2,000) for Strickland. Galbraith said that he anticipated a gate of between $75,000 (£15,000) and $100,000 (£20,000).

Farr will return to the U.S. in time to be at the ringside when Joe Louis defends his world title against Max Schmeling on June 22.

According to Joe Gould, his manager, Farr will probably have one fight while in England, perhaps against Walter Neusel.

Paul Damski, Neusel's manger, has declared his intention of leaving for England in June to be in Neusel's corner against Farr, but those connected with Farr refuse to confirm that the match has already been made.—Reuter.

Chicago Threat Fades as Cubs Go Down Before Dodgers

Giants Draw Away by Trouncing Cardinals With Bartell Clouting Two Home Runs

New York, June 18.

THE Chicago Cubs ceased to be an immediate menace to the New York Giants today by losing to the Brooklyn Dodgers while the Terrymen were again thumping the St. Louis Cardinals.

But the Cubs did not succumb to the Daffiness Boys without a struggle. On the short end of a 1-0 score going into the ninth, the Bruins shoved one run across the plate to knot the count. The tie was short-lived, however, for Babe Phelps came through in the Dodgers' half of the inning to deposit the ball over the fence for a home run that clinched the game, 2-1.

A four run rally in the fourth inning enabled the New York Giants to again defeat the Cardinals, 5-3. Dick Bartell, veteran Gotham shortstop, led the Giants attack with a brace of home runs.

Two runs in the first inning gave the Philadelphia Phillies a lead that was dissipated almost immediately when Lee Handley of the Pittsburgh Pirates clouted his fourth homer in five days with one aboard, giving the Bucs a tie that eventually culminated in a ding dong struggle. Not until the ninth inning were the Phils able to come through with the runs that brought a 5-3 victory in their wake.

Boston Victory

The Cincinnati Reds put up a hard struggle against the Boston Bees, but despite the fact that they outhit the Beantowners by 16-12, the Rhinelanders were forced to accept a 7-4 defeat. Shut out until the ninth, the Reds staged an abortive rally productive of four runs, which fell short of victory by three tallies. Debs Garms, Ernie Lombardi and Walter Berger were the hitting stars, each connecting for a trio of safeties. In the American League, both the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees were forced to swallow the pills of defeat, thus missing golden opportunities to gain upon one another.

The Yankees were shut out by the St. Louis Browns through sparkling work on the mound by Hal Mills, who held the Ruppert Rifles to only four scattered hits, fanned eight and walked four. The Browns scored their game winning tally in the second inning.

A two run rally in the third followed by another productive of two runs in the fourth sent Willis Hudlin scampering to the sanctuary of the showers and gave the Philadelphia Athletics the impetus for an 8-4 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

Trosky's Round Trip

Hal Trosky belted out a home run for the Tribe, but the effort was futile beyond adding to the first sacker's individual list of achievements.

Home runs carried the Detroit Tigers to victory over the Washington Senators, 5-3. With the count knotted at 3-3 in the last inning, Bill Rogell wafted the ball into the stands for a home run with one mate on the paths and the two runs that brought victory. Hank Greenberg and Charley Gehringer also connected for circuit blows.

In what was probably the most exciting game of the day, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Chicago White Sox by 4-3 in a battle stretching over twelve innings. The tie resulted as a result of a three run rally staged by the Chisox in the second inning, for during the entire rest of the game Lefty Grove was supreme, keeping the plate unsullied.

The Beantowners won in the twelfth frame when Roger Cramer's long fly to centre scored Ray Desautels with the deciding tally.

Four Lawn Bowls Matches Played

Pairs Championships in Spite of the Very Heavy Conditions

The weather has not been particularly kind to the Lawn Bowls Association. It was hoped that the various greens would dry sufficiently during Saturday and Sunday to permit the greater portion of the first round of the Pairs Championship to be played off. Bookings were heavy at the Race Course and optimism ran high during yesterday morning until it was eventually decided that the lack of sunshine was leaving the turf in unplayable condition and the red flag stayed in dismal command.

On the twenty odd games which constituted the first round of the Pairs Championships it was only possible to complete four, and these took place under conditions far from favourable both overhead and underfoot, play being exceptionally heavy.

Brilliant Effort

At Wayside Park, a very keen game was played between W. A. Bailey and C Tanner against A. McLean and L. Bell resulting in a win for the latter pair by 23 shots to 14. McLean just got the edge of it until the 15th end when Bailey and his partner pulled up. Bailey got 4 at the 19th and was legging 5 at the 20th end when McLean drew the shot with his last wood, a really brilliant effort. At the last end, McLean and Bell added four and ran out comfortable winners.

At Hongkew Park, three games were able to be completed, J. W. M. Dickson and S. Craig defeating A. Roberts and J. Gaffney by the healthy margin of 29 shots to 13, running ahead at the 10th end with a 15-5 lead.

The other two games resulted in closer, and identical, scores. R. Thomson and K. L. Swartzell defeated J. C. Dickson and W. Hutton whilst A. B. Hogg and J. Campbell were the winners from F. Medina and A. H. Corveth the score-board at the completion of both rinks showing 23 shots to 17.

Local Small Football Trial Match

Chinese Players Vie for Interport Positions

Preparations have almost been completed in connection with the forthcoming "small football" match between Hongkong and Shanghai, which will be known as the Interport Miniature Football Series, as a trial game among Chinese players was held yesterday at the Aurora University grounds between a team of Whites and another team of Reds.

After a most absorbing fight the two sides battled to a tie of 1-1. Despite the constant threat of downpour, a big crowd was on hand to see the players struggle in placing themselves to match the Colony team in the first Interport of its kind.

Freddy Foyn, the well-known St. Francis Xavier's College star winger, has been given the power to select an all-star Foreign team which will meet Hongkong in the first game. In view of their recent success in the Shanghai Charity Cup by defeating the Chinese 3-0, the French star should have no difficulty to line up a strong team.

Schneirzon of the Public and Thomas Hanbury School is sure to play in goal. E. Victal, the Clube Lusitano defender, will take up one of the full-back positions while the other vacancy will belong to either Got or Demail of the French Army. Wiley will take up the centre-half post while the forwards will be Foyn, right winger, L. Rozario, centre-forward, and V. Souza, left winger.

Hongkong's Visit Delayed

Hongkong had her trial a week ago and the final selections will be made known within these few days. Because of Shanghai's weather, the southerners' sailings have been delayed. They have been requested by the local authority to postpone their visit. Play will begin on July 2, Saturday, and the visitors are expected to leave the Colony next Sunday, June 26.

The National Miniature Football Association has procured a handsome silver cup which will go into the possession of the victorious team. This trophy is presented by the producers of Tiger Balm Ointment.

L'Humanite Win Laurels

Competition in the Shanghai League has been completed. L'Humanite, by defeating the French Forces 3-1 in the final play-off game, captured the First Division laurels. In yesterday's trial the champions, as one team, narrowly escaped defeat in face of a strong opposition put up by the rest of the teams. N. Z. Lee was the one who pulled the league winners out from a tight spot as he scored in the second half to force a draw.

Officers Elected by Hongkew Golf Club

C. A. Pereira Again Made President of Body

Despite the existing conditions which caused some inconvenience in using the rinks in Hongkew Park, members of the Hongkew Golf Club are still active in the game and show the same keenness in regard to the various tournaments.

The Annual General Meeting was held yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. C. A. Pereira and, besides the past year's activities were reviewed, officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Mr. C. A. Pereira was re-elected as President while Messrs. C. M. Sequeira and A. M. Collaco were named as Honorary Secretary and Treasurer respectively. The two Committees were Messrs. C. A. de Silva and A. P. Roza.

King Carol in Istanbul

Istanbul, June 19.

The Royal Rumanian yacht Luceafarul has been lying at anchor in Istanbul harbour since yesterday morning. King Carol of Rumania paid an incognito visit ashore yesterday afternoon and made a sightseeing tour of the city.

It is not known whether King Carol has paid an unofficial visit to the Turkish President, Kamal Atatuerk who is at present on his yacht Savarona, also anchored in Istanbul harbour.—Trans-Ocean.

Coast Baseball

San Francisco, June 18.

Sacramento held their strong lead in the Pacific Coast Baseball Legaue today by beating San Diego, 3-1, in a night game at Sacramento. The visitors chalked up only one less hit than the Sacramento club but failed to come in for the necessary scoring marks. Sacramento made one error but San Diego had a clear slate.

Mr. Garvin Writes on Situation

Three-Point Suggestion on British Policy

London, June 19.

This summer is the most dangerous since 1914 for the peace of Europe writes Mr. J. L. Garvin in the "Observer". However, peace can be maintained, he continues, on condition 1, that Great Britain follows a foreign policy without passion; 2, that she continues to prevent the Spanish conflict from extending beyond the frontiers of the Iberian peninsula; 3, that events in China be watched carefully and that Great Britain does nothing without co-operation from the United States.

Japan might in the non-distant future, attempt negotiations in a moderate spirit, and then would it be that Britain's cold tenacity and judgment would bear fruit, Mr. Garvin adds.

Continuing, he warns Britain against taking part in any quarrel between Germany and Czechoslovakia, maintaining her stand of strict impartiality.

The editor concludes his review with warm praise for the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain and the Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax. "Wherever we turn our eyes, whether towards Spain or Central Europe or the Far East, we see that Anglo-German discord has been the central source of the whole world's political peril and economic evils. An Anglo-German settlement would be the beginning of all good. Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax: Keep this in mind."—Havas.

Italian Minister Wants to Expedite New Treaty

Rome, June 18.

Official sources confirmed reports here today that Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, had informally suggested to Britain that a study be made to expedite the operations of the recently signed Anglo-Italian Pact.

Count Ciano was said to have informed the British Foreign Office that Italy had fulfilled all the provisions of the Pact except some conditions regarding the Spanish civil war which "could not be fulfilled because of the obstructionist tactics of other nations."—United Press.

Rome, June 19.

Bound for Signor Benito Mussolini's country residence, Rocca del Caminate, Count Ciano, has left Venice following his conference with Yugoslavian Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch.

Count Ciano, will report on his discussions with Dr. Stoyadinovitch, which bore on political subjects of interest to both statesmen's countries. Count Ciano is also understood to have discussed the purchase of large quantities of wheat from Yugoslavia.—Havas.

Don Pedro Pirated Near Haimen

Ship Arrives at Ningpo; Cigarette Cargo Looted;

According to latest information, Portuguese coaster Don Pedro, operated by the China Foreign Steamship Corporation, arrived in Ningpo yesterday morning after being held up on the way by pirates, who kept her for two days.

She left Wenchow on Wednesday morning for Ningpo, but five hours after her departure ran aground in the Sungmen Island group, before reaching Haimen. As she was waiting for a higher tide, a gang of pirates arrived in several junks, and went aboard.

Posting sentries at the radio operator's room to prevent a call for help, they ransacked the ship. Passengers and crew were searched and robbed of money and valuables amounting to several thousand dollars, and took away a dozen of cases of cigarettes and general cargo which they loaded into their junks.

Vessel Released

Early on Saturday morning a vessel believed to be a foreign gunboat, appeared in the vicinity, at the sight of which the pirates quickly decamped taking with them the ship's compradore, who is believed to be held for ransom.

The piracy was first reported by fishermen who passed the spot and reported to the company's Wenchow office that their vessel was aground and attacked by pirates.

At the time of the disaster there were some thirty Chinese passengers aboard, a considerable amount of cargo including 750 cases of cigarettes, and a crew of about 50 Chinese sailors and members of the compradore's staff. The vessel flies a Portuguese flag and is commanded by Capt. X. F. Maher. It is understood that the local Portuguese consulate have asked the Foreign Naval authorities to help them to get the victim released.

The Don Pedro leaves Ningpo this afternoon and is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning.

Japanese Bomb Hainan Island

Japanese naval aircraft visited Hoihow, major port in Hainan Island on Saturday for the second time in as many days, bombing Chinese coastal defense positions, a China Seas Fleet communique issued at noon yesterday revealed. Several positions were claimed having been demolished by the bombs.

On the south China mainland, the communique said, raids were carried out against Shaokwan, in northern Kwangtung, Namyung, near the Kiangsi border, and Foochow.

At Shaokwang, the Canton-Hankow railway station, and freight cars in the station yard as well as the track were attacked. Bombs were also dropped on the Airdrome, damaging hangars and adjoining barracks. Military establishments at Shaokwan were also attacked.

The Foochow arsenal, barracks and military establishments were also made targets.

Aircraft also co-operated with Japanese naval forces active on the Yangtze attacking Chinese concentrations and fortifications near Matowchen, below Kiukiang.

Bombay Cotton Market

Bombay, June 18.

Nervous conditions continued to prevail in the Bombay cotton market during the past week, with the daily turnover large, but option dealers are attempting to confine fluctuations to narrower limits until July/August option matures.

Export inquiry was slightly better, with Lancashire and the Continent a little more active, but Japan interests are sill out of the market, due to their foreign exchange requirements being limited.

The spot turnover was poor, while mills were covering for immediate requirements.

The monsoon has brought vigorous widespread rains, permitting early planting.—Reuter.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, June 18.

The weekly report of the Berlin sharemarket reveals some remarkable features, particularly in respect of the almost unprecedented shrinkage in the amount of the turnover and the entire lack of interest shown by the investing public in securities.

In spite of these developments, the average fall in the price level did not exceed 1 1/2 per cent., proving that shareholders are on a whole far from being inclined to sell.

The chief reason for the shrinkage in the turnover lies in connection with the financing of the fort-nightly and mid-yearly settlements and the withdrawals by the industry for paying off tax instalments due on June 10. It is confidently expected that the early part of next month will bring a general improvement in the situation.

Furthermore, the gigantic building projects started in the German capital, and the enormous sums needed for giving a new impetus to the Austrian industry are swallowing up huge sums and demanding supplementary investments.

A third factor accounting for the stagnation on the share market is that many owners of capital are preferring at the moment to participate in new enterprises or to take over industrial and commercial undertakings rather than investing their money in shares or securities.

Revealing light on these conditions is thrown by the latest report of the German Investitute for Business Research. It is pointed out for instance in this report that the German industrial production has increased by 8 per cent. from August, 1937, to March, 1938, whereas there has been an 11 per cent. decline in world production over the same period. This is a factor naturally contributing to the undertone of confidence prevailing on the German sharemarket. Incidentally, German banking and stock exchange circles have intimated their approval of the attitude adopted by the German Government in the question of Austria's guaranteed loans.

The bond market had a quiet week with a noticeable increase in demand during the last few days although the turnover remained small. The leading and rather inexplicable feature was a further fall in the price of German railroads preferred stock.

Call money ranged from 3 to 3 1/4 per cent. during the first half of the week but dropped to from 2 7/8 to 3 1/8 in the latter half. The private discount rate remained at 2 7/8 per cent.

London Money Market

London, June 18.

The past week witnessed a better inquiry for credit, especially on Wednesday when a large demand for application of money for the new Defence Loan caused heavy withdrawals from the market.

Supplies, however, were fully sufficient, and, in fact, there is still a plethora of money seeking employment, as revealed by the fall in the average allotment rate in the latest Treasury tender.—Reuter.

Reichsmark Quotations

Berlin, June 18.

The following were today's Reichsmark quotations: New York 40.41, Amsterdam 72.835, London 12.30.

Paris quoted sterling at 178.33 to 178.39 and the U.S. dollar not being quoted.—Trans-Ocean.

New York Stocks

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 18.

The New York stock market remained in the doldrums today, with losses and gains of fractions evenly divided either way. Today's turnover was one of the smallest seen for any day since August 1918, amounting to only 100,000 shares with traders still adopting a "wait-and-see" attitude. Coppers benefitted by the curtailment of foreign production. Steels were heavy, while sheetings and scrap were better. No. 1 heavy melting steel in Pittsburgh advanced $0.50 per ton today, with some small tonnage reported to be sold at $11.50 per ton.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Favourable factors on the Stock Exchange today were: some hopeful business news; brighter reports from oils centres; steel news showed several bright spots; several upturns in railroad earnings for May; slight improvement in department store sales; and, vacation travel was encouraging. A Dow-Jones survery states: "Few people think the depression will carry over next summer and said that they were not going to spend the winter wishing they had taken the trip that they had in mind." However, the textile industry shows scant seasonal improvement.

AT a wedding in Lancashire recently, the bride was aged 21, her mother 45, her grandmother 63, and her great-grandmother 82. All looked in fine health.

U.S. Commodities

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 18.

Interest in the cotton market was at a low ebb, with steadier Liverpool advices being offset by moderate July liquidation, week-end evening-up, and hedging earlier in the morning. Subsequently, the market rallied on trade price-fixing of nearbys, further Bombay buying of distants and some Wall Street buying. Closing quotations were steady, ranging from 7 to 9 points up from the previous final levels.

The Chicago Wheat Pit is showing signs of becoming a weather market, while prices were reduced today on favourable crop reports from the south-west and Eastern selling. Lack of new buying checked professional interest. At the final bell, quotations ranged from 1 3/4 to 2 cents down.

British Markets Report

London, June 18.

Dollars failed in the foreign exchange market today. The rate weakened under Continental offerings from 498.87 cts. to 497.06 cts. Francs fluctuated within narrow limits, but closed unchanged at 178.34.

The recent buying of gold for hoarding purposes has now passed the climax and today's turnover was limited to £405,000. The price of bar gold fell 1/2d. to 140/10d. per fine ounce, which included a premium of 11 1/2d. over the American dollar parity, or a penny below yesterday's parity.

The silver outlook is uncertain. Spot and forward positions both declined 1/16d. to 18 11/16d. and 18 3/8d. per ounce, respectively. Speculators sold, with business small.

Week-end money was available at the customary 1/2 per cent, while the three months bill rate ruled steady at 1/2 per cent.

Copper prices were stimulated by the cut in producers' output from 105 per cent. to 95 per cent. of standard basic tonnages. In unofficial circles today, copper reached £35:0:0 per ton, showing a jump of 15/-.—Reuter.

British Move Against German Cars

Legislation May Result In Higher Duty

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 19.

Government action against the importation of German motor cars is foreshadowed by notice of a motion which Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will move in the House of Commons tomorrow, transferring the customs duties at present levied under the Finance Act on motor cars to the Import Duties Act.

This will enable the Imports Advisory Committee to review the situation and, if it thinks fit, to increase the duty.—Reuter.

1,500,000 Cars to be Produced Yearly

German Factory's Huge Capacity by 1946

Berlin, June 19.

No fewer than 1,500,000 cars will be produced by the "Strength through Joy" organization's automobile factory at Fallersleben in the year of 1946 when the plant will reach its full production capacity, announced Dr. Robert Ley, leader of the German Labour Front, yesterday.

The first "People's Cars" will be marketed in the year 1940 but in the first few years the output capacity of the Fallersleben plant will be considerably below the maximum of 1,500,000 which will be attained only after the completion of the entire production plant which will be the largest automobile factory in Europe.

The revolutionary effect which the appearance of the popular-priced car produced by the Strength through Joy organization will have on the motorisation of Germany can be gauged when one considers that at present only 1,300,000 private motor-cars are registered in Germany.—Trans-Ocean.

Noted Pole Dies

Warsaw, June 18.

Stanislaus Car, ormer president of the Sejm (parliament) and one of Marshal Joseh Pilsudski's closest collaborators, died today. He was author of Poland's 1933 constitution.—United Press.

Tribesmen Outbreak in Waziristan

Water Supply Repair Made Despite Opposition

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Simla, June 18.

In the face of sharp opposition from about 300 tribesmen, a column of the 3rd Infantry Brigade carried out repairs to the water supply at Mamirogha, in north-west Waziristan, which had recently been damaged by tribesmen.

Four Indian soldiers were killed and 20 wounded by snipers as the column fought its way through to Mamirogha. A similar number of casualties was inflicted on the tribesmen.—Reuter.

New Palestine Incidents

Jerusalem, June 19.

The tension throughout Palestine continues unabated and the papers again report numerous incidents. According to the press here, no fewer than seven shooting affrays were reported during the last two days from various parts of the country. Five persons were killed and two wounded.

Numerous cases of sabotage, several arrests, two cases of robbery as well as a number of incidents appear to indicate that the intensified precautionary measures taken by the authorities are proving to be ineffective.—

"Deficiency of information in Japanese English-language newspapers is completed very successfully by an English newspaper in Kobe The Japan Chronicle . . on its pages can often be found criticisms of the political and economic actions of the Japanese Government and various other information which gives the opportunity to observe and to analyse the Japanese economic situation. In addition to the usual material obtainable from all the Japanese English-language newspapers. The Japan Chronicle gives a very detailed and comprehensive review of the foreign trade of Japan. It regularly prints statistics pertaining to Japanese exports and the state of the home market."—Extracts from U.S.S.R. Chamber of Commerce Journal.
